U.S. takes first step to draft

FOLKFEST MEANT FUN for estimated 82,000 people who visited ethnic celebration in Victoria's Centennial Square. Multicultural gourmets were in heaven, feeding on Hungarian langos, Indian samosas, Ukrainian perogies and other delicious fare. Canada Day windup to the nine-day festival saw a two-by-three foot birthday cake handed out to the crowds and a flypast by nine Canadian Forces aircraft from Comox. Square was jammed by moms, dads and small fry dressed for the searing sun. Wet weather last week put a damper on things, but the last few days were fantastic, said one organizer. For news of July 1 activities nationally, see page 19. Sidney Days pictures are on page 56 and pictures of Armed Forces Day events are on page 17.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, saying he was acting to "maintain peace," issued an order today requiring 4 million young American men to sign up for draft registration between July 21 and Aug. 2 at their local post offices.

Carter said the order is designed "not to threaten war, but to preserve peace."

"I am not in favor of a peacetime draft," Carter said. "We will continue to rely on voluntary enlistment by the military forces to defend our country."

Under Carter's order, men born in 1960 must register during the first week of the sign-up period and those born in 1961 during the week starting July 28.

Thus, all the nation's 19 and 20-year-old men are required to fill out forms at the nation's 34,000 post offices during the two-week period. Even those who are 18 now but will turn 19 before year's end must register.

Then, beginning next January, men born in 1962 will register. After that, each man will sign up when he turns 18.

All that is required on the registration form is name, address, phone number, date of birth and Social Security number. Men who fail to register could face a maximum five years in prison and a $10,000 fine if the government chooses to prosecute them.

Surrounded by congressional and other supporters of draft registration — all of them well beyond the age of those affected by the proclamation — Carter emphasized that "this is not a draft."

"I am not in favor of a peacetime draft," he said, adding that the United States will continue to rely on voluntary enlistment to meet its military manpower needs.

The order implements a bill Carter signed Friday providing more than $13 million to pay for the costs. An actual draft would require a military emergency and congressional approval.

Several groups have organized to combat registration and the American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit to stop the process, contending the process discriminates against men since women are not included.

To counter these groups, an organization called College Democrats of America — working through the Democratic National Committee — issued a statement supporting the president.

MG rescue bid fails

LONDON (UPI) — It's goodbye to the MG sports car and this time it's final.

A British consortium formed to rescue the famous MG name from extinction admitted Tuesday it had failed to raise the necessary cash.

So British Leyland, the car manufacturer that loses $2,000 on every MG it sells in North America, said it will close the production plant at Abingdon and fire its 820 workers.

For 55 years the MG has been the romantic epitome of the British sports car. But now only 30,000 a year are produced.

Beer by half dozen takes a price jump

Beer by the half dozen costs 15 cents more today in a price adjustment announced by the Liquor Distribution Branch.

The new price is $3.10 for six bottles of standard domestic brands.

At the same time the price of Schlitz beer from the U.S. rose $1.25 for a six pack, bringing the price to $5.10, the equivalent of $10.20 a dozen.

Meanwhile, Olympia, the other U.S. brand stocked in LDB stores, is a comparative bargain at $6 a dozen.

Domestic beer is $5.90 a dozen, including the deposit. A dozen beer costs $4.75 in neighboring Alberta.

The price per dozen had been increased in April when federal excise taxes were increased.

The 15-cent increase in the half-dozen size includes a penny added to the sales tax. The net 14-cent increase is split between the breweries and the LDB.

The new pricing structure for a half-dozen domestic beer is $2.62 plus 18 cents in sales tax plus 30 cents for the bottles.

For a dozen it remains at $4.95 plus 35 cents sales tax plus 60 cents for the bottles.

LDB information officer Joyce Courtney said it is usual for the half-dozen size to be comparatively more expensive than buying by the dozen, just as two mickeys will cost more than one bottle of rye.

She said the $1.25 increase in Schlitz was at the request of the brewery and was not related to any possible influx of American beer if there is a brewery strike here.

Labor negotiations are continuing at the breweries.

The LDB does not have facilities to do any stockpiling because beer moves directly to the LDB stores.

"The stores buy beer by the day and they don't have much storage space either. They must reserve space for the stacks of empties. Some hotels have been stockpiling beer, I understand."

Anti-trust bubble in the cards

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal judge has popped the bubble in the baseball-card business by ruling that the Topps Chewing Gum Co. and the Major Leagues Baseball Players Association violated U.S. anti-trust laws.

U.S. District Judge Clarence Newcomer ruled Tuesday that "Topps and the players association have unlawfully restrained and monopolized trade in pocket-size pictures of active major league baseball players."

The suit was brought by a former competitor in the baseball trading card market, Fleer Corp. of Philadelphia. But while Fleer, which claims to have invented bubble gum, had asked for $16 million in damages in the suit that was filed five years ago, Newcomer awarded it $3.

Based in Brooklyn, N.Y., and regarded as the world's largest bubble gum manufacturer, Topps has dominated the market for almost a quarter of a century.

In his ruling, Newcomer said: "Together, Topps and the players association have all of the market power there is in the baseball card market; and they have unlawfully exercised that power in a way which has left the Topps product alone in the market."

Fishy way to prepare for a quake!

Times News Services

Japanese rushed to stores to stock up on emergency supplies Tuesday after experts warned that a major earthquake could follow hundreds of tremors that shook central Japan over the weekend.

Officials and store keepers reported a run on non-perishable foods and other survival items at stores throughout Tokyo.

There was also a run on live catfish. Shops that sold them quickly ran out.

The catfish were bought by both the superstitious and the scientific-minded, who put them in their toilet bowls to give warning of an impending quake.

According to myth, Japan rests on the back of a giant sleeping catfish and everytime it stirs, an earthquake occurs.

But authorities also say there is some truth to the myth. They said experiments conducted recently by Japanese researchers showed that catfish act abnormally before a quake.

Tokyo authorities issued a quake warning after 130 tremors shook central Japan over the weekend. The largest of them, registering 6.7 on the open-ended Richter scale, rocked buildings in Tokyo, sending many of its 11.6 million residents into the streets in panic.

Experts warned they expect a major earthquake to hit Shizuoka province on Izu peninsula and predicted it could be comparable to the 1923 great Kanto earthquake that left about 143,000 people dead in and around Tokyo.

Meanwhile in North America, a series of small earthquakes rattled Mount St. Helens before ending as abruptly as it began, scientists said early today.

Gold jumps

London's five bullion traders fixed the morning price of gold at $672 U.S. an ounce, up from Tuesday's close of $660, and the highest London price for the metal since it closed at $695.50 on Feb. 13. The market closed today with prices dropping to $663.00.

Heatwave toll rises

Times News Services

In the sun-baked southwest U.S. — where almost 100 deaths have been linked to intense heat — rising crime, fears about water shortages and exploding highways are adding to the misery.

Of 96 deaths, authorities in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri reported 51 were directly attributable to the heat and 45 that were said to be heat-related.

Records were set for the ninth straight day Tuesday in the Dallas-Fort Worth area with a high of 43 degrees. Wichita Falls, Texas, had 45 degrees at midday and Wichita, Kan., recorded a high of 43.

A spokesman for the Dallas Police Department said crime had risen markedly because of the heat.

Meanwhile, in Thunder Bay, Ont., firefighters continue to battle Thunder Bay 46, the province's largest forest fire.

Princess overbooks — again

Seattle radio station KMPS says it was attacked by an angry mob last year because the B.C. Steamship Co. overbooked on the Victoria-Seattle ferry run.

Now the station claims that the Crown Corporation has done it again.

And that's got KMPS management mad.

The station has complained to Tourism Minister Pat Jordan about the problem of overbooking on the Victoria-Seattle ferry.

In a letter to the minister, station program director Ron Norwood says he is protesting "the serious problem of overbooking and lack of either competence or communications on the part of the B.C. Steamship Co. personnel."

He asks Jordan to look into the matter and prevent it from happening again.

The minister's office said today Norwood's letter hasn't arrived yet.

KMPS' first run-in with the ferry service occurred Sept. 29, 1979, the day of the station's fourth annual trip aboard the Princess Marguerite to Victoria.

The station sold 750 tickets to listeners for the round trip and, Norwood says, kept in contact with the ferry office in Seattle as to the ticket count.

But 224 of the ticket holders were left behind because, he says, the Seattle ticket office oversold the ship.

"To add to our problems, some members of the Seattle staff told the people left behind that KMPS had oversold the ship, and as a result of this, over 100 angry persons stormed and vandalized the radio station threatening bodily harm to station personnel."

KMPS representatives met B.C. Steamship officials after the trip and were told it wouldn't happen again.

But it did.

This year's trip was set for June 22 on the Victoria Princess, which replaced the Marguerite on the run.

Arrangements were made with David Price, the steamship company's general manager, to have the vessel reserved entirely for the station on that day.

The company's Seattle office issued the station 800 tickets for the Princess which can accommodate 823.

However, Norwood says the station was told on the morning of June 22 that another 60 tickets had been sold to a charter company.

"As a result, approximately 30 persons were left on the dock in Seattle," he says.

"To add insult to injury, the Seattle staff once again told people that we oversold the ship."

Another 30 people were left in Victoria on the return trip as a result of more tickets being sold at this end.

Norwood says when he got back to Seattle he went to talk to Jack McDonald, the steamship company's terminal manager.

He was met by McDonald's assistant Paul Bubnick who, Norwood says, claimed to have no knowledge of the station's problems and "became extremely rude and sarcastic."

"After the events of the day, and being told by one more person that they didn't know anything, I also became rude.

"As a result Mr. Bubnick called a Pinkerton guard to have me escorted from the terminal.

"I left before this was necessary."

— If the B.C. Steamship Co. knew about the 60 extra chartered persons, why didn't they tell KMPS?

— Why wasn't the Victoria terminal manager informed of the fact that KMPS had already sold 800 tickets for the Victoria Princess on June 22?

Youngsters among 500 retarded sterilized in Que.

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 500 mentally-retarded Quebecers, many of them youngsters, were sterilized between 1976 and 1978.

The Quebec Mental Health Committee, a provincial advisory board, has called for tighter controls on such procedures.

In a report recently tabled in the national assembly, the committee expressed surprise at the number of mentally retarded who are sterilized. It recommended that consultative committees be set up to approve sterilizations.

The committee, which reports to Social Affairs Minister Denis Lazure, surveyed 170 Quebec obstetricians and gynecologists, who indicated that from 1976 to 1978 they received 744 requests and carried out 517 sterilizations of the mentally retarded — 72 per cent of those requested.

The physicians who responded to the survey said they also received 269 requests for abortions for retarded individuals in the same three-year period.

Such decisions should not be a matter for individual discretion, the report said. Committees should be established to consider all requests for non-therapeutic sterilizations. These committees would evaluate the individual's level of retardation and ability to consent to the sterilization, and examine his or her situation.

Sterilization should only be considered as a last resort, after other methods of birth control have been seriously considered, and it should not be considered for at least a year after the individual has reached puberty, the report added.

The committee found sterilization affects more girls than boys.

Most of those sterilized were quite young when the operation was carried out: 10 were under 17, four were 13 and one was 11.

The committee found parents were more alarmed about unwanted pregnancies than were personnel in institutions for the retarded.

Active Pass boaters cited

A number of charges were laid during the weekend against boaters in Active Pass.

RCMP have increased patrols in the pass because of long-standing complaints from B.C. Ferries that small vessels disobeying safety regulations make travel through the pass difficult for the ferries.

An RCMP spokesman said starting today, the police boat Advance will be in the Active Pass area every day for the remainder of the summer.

Several charges for not having regulation equipment on board were laid this weekend but no charges were laid against sports fishermen for impeding ferry traffic.

Sports fisherman in the pass since 1977 have been issued 140 warnings for interfering with ferries and 11 boaters have been charged.

Maximum penalty is a $500 fine, six months in jail or both.

Last year the Queen of Alberni ran aground at the western entrance to the pass although sports fishermen were not the cause of that accident.

Burned bridge strands celebrating community

STEWART (CP) — Work began Tuesday in this boom-and-bust northwestern B.C. community to replace a one-lane bridge that burned, stranding between 500 and 800 visitors attending a homecoming festival.

The bridge burned Monday, cutting off not only Stewart but the nearby community of Hyder, Alaska, and the road link to Cassiar.

B.C. Highways Minister Alex Fraser met with the town council Tuesday morning, then announced a two-section bailey bridge would be constructed across the Bear River, probably to be complete mid-day Thursday.

Those who want to leave the hard-luck town of about 1,000 earlier can board the barge that is bringing the bailey bridge up the Portland Canal or, in emergency cases, be flown by helicopter across the river and board a bus for Terrace, about 300 kilometres south, Fraser said.

Police believe the fire that burned the 91-metre, creosote-soaked wooden bridge was deliberately set.

The fire occurred after visitors had flocked to this mining community on the Alaska panhandle border for a 50th anniversary celebration.

Despite the blaze, Canada Day and homecoming festivities had not gone up in smoke. Police said the visitors and residents were enjoying themselves.

"They are having quite the celebration up here," said Fraser. "I have some constituents up here and they don't care if they ever leave. There's no panic, no concern."

Stewart, a hardy town which has seen a series of ups and downs in the last 15 years, is bubbling again with vigor after $1 million was injected into the local economy by moviemakers, an asbestos mine is shipping ore through the community and Esso Minerals Ltd. has decided to reopen the Granduc mine.

Psychiatric tests for mother

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Denise Aimola, 19, charged with second-degree murder in the death of her one-year-old daughter Marca, appeared in provincial court here Monday and was remanded in custody to July 29 for psychiatric examination.

The court imposed a ban on the publication and broadcast of proceedings at the request of the defence, but rejected a second application to have all court proceedings held in secret.

Mrs. Aimola was arrested last week after the body of her daughter was found. Police had been treating the disappearance of the little girl as a kidnapping.

Freak fatality

SALMO (CP) — RCMP have identified a 54-year-old man from Fruitvale, who was killed in an unusual accident six kilometres west of here.

Police say Aram Joseph Lajeunesse was killed Sunday night when he fell out of the rear door of a moving camper.

First contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Bank of Montreal and the Union of Bank Employees, local 2100, have concluded a first collective agreement covering 11 employees at the bank's Kimberley branch.

The agreement provides for a salary increase of eight per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, an additional two per cent at the time of the bank's next salary review this year, and a wage reopener clause covering 1981. Base rates were not available.

Elevator death

VANCOUVER (CP) — An inquest will be held into the death of a 47-year-old repairman who was crushed Monday night by an elevator in a downtown hotel.

John Cannell of Vancouver was working on one of the Devonshire Hotel's two elevators.

Cannell apparently reached down the side to try to re-activate a faulty switch. Previous elevator calls weren't cancelled and the elevator went up, crushing him against the wall.

Fall fatal to boy

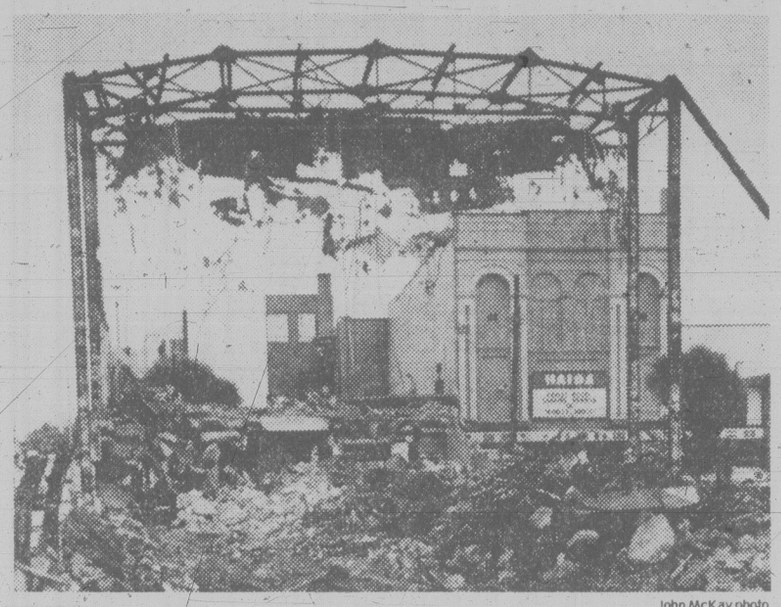

VANDERHOOF (CP) — A 12-year-old boy has died from injuries received in a fall Saturday at a youth ranch south of this north-central community. Scott Douglas Ramage of Penticton fell into a creek at York Ranch near Vanderhoof and broke his neck.

Asbestos risk low

The asbestos hazard in B.C. schools is minimal, a six-month study has concluded.

Education Minister Brian Smith said the study of six school districts in which asbestos products were known to have been used in school construction found that without exception there seemed to be little or no danger to students or staff.

However, he said isolated exceptions may exist and he urged all school districts to take advantage of the summer months to check facilities.

'Hang me,' sobs man accused of killing wife

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man charged with murdering his estranged wife broke down in the witness stand Monday and asked a B.C. Supreme Court jury to hang him.

"Kill me, hang me, I'm tired; I shot my wife; I don't want to say any more," Pasquale Antonio Redavid shouted to the jury as he buried his head in his hands and lapsed into uncontrolled sobbing.

"She's six feet under; I want 12."

Chief Justice Allan McEachern then adjourned the court.

Redavid is charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of Vincenza Redavid outside her home last Nov. 20. Medical evidence showed she had been shot six times.

Court was told that the accused walked into the Richmond RCMP detachment half an hour later, announced he had killed his wife, placed a revolver on the counter and asked to be arrested.

Two of Redavid's children had testified about their parents' stormy marriage, and said that their father had beaten their mother.

Pipeline gamble

The federal cabinet will soon decide whether to allow a start this year on the Canadian prebuilt section of the Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline. The bottom line will be whether Canada believes it has enough assurances from the United States that the prebuilt section will someday connect with a pipeline from Alaska and the rich Prudhoe Bay gas fields.

At stake in the short term is a much-needed economic boost — hundreds of construction jobs and increased gas exports. The federal government is also anxious to be seen doing something for the western economy at a time when the it has few friends in the west.

But in the long run Canada faces the possibility of being stuck with a multimillion-dollar pipeline which might not be paid off before it exhausts Alberta's gas reserves. Canada at the moment has a surplus of natural gas, but to be in a position where it must export gas is unthinkable.

It appears, however, that Canada is as close as it will come in the foreseeable future to an iron-clad agreement with the Americans that the $21 billion pipeline eventually will be completed.

Not content with President Carter's personal word, Canadian officials sought and received a resolution from the U.S. Senate pledging completion by 1985. That was a smart move on Canada's part. There is no need to look farther than the east coast fisheries treaty approved by the Carter administration and the Canadian government and now is held up by the U.S. Senate.

However, there is no evidence or assurance from the Americans that the Alaska portion of the pipeline can be financed and completed. Condition 12 of Canada's Northern Pipeline Act requires that the overall project must be shown to be financially feasible before the prebuild portions can proceed.

The cabinet must now assess the risk in proceeding without American financial guarantees. It would appear that it can without undue jeopardy.

The pre-built portion is in two sections. From a Y-junction near Calgary one line will branch off and distribute gas to the western United States and the other will branch east to the mid-western States.

Foothills Pipe Line Ltd. says it must have government approval before July 15 to complete the $160 million western branch this year. Construction of the $500 million eastern branch wouldn't start until next summer.

Approval for only the smaller pipeline would get construction crews working and increase gas exports with a comparatively smaller capital investment.

Next spring, with gas flowing though the pipe, and the American presidential elections over, Canada, and for that matter, the United States, could well be in a better position to assess the financial viability of the whole pipeline.

Disturbing comment

The most disturbing thing abouta the recent call for control of news media and information services is the source.

John Meisel is the chairman of the powerful Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission. As such, his belief that the "control and flow of news and information will become increasingly important" should be enough to give the federal government second thoughts about his appointment.

Nobody would argue that the performance of the media in some cases leaves something to be desired. As Meisel told a national public relations convention in Vancouver last week, sometimes the information provided is not complete or rigorous and opinions presented are biased.

But for all its faults and constraints, the news media and the general public could hardly be comfortable with some government agency controlling the flow of information in the country. Regulatory standards administered by government appointees such as Meisel would leave the media one step short of the type of control it faces in most communist countries.

The CRTC chairman said afterwards that he knows of people in the media who have adopted policies of distortion.

Rather than advocating control of the media to deal with these "policies of distortion", Meisel should simply state which individuals or media organizations have these despicable habits. The public would then be able to evaluate his opinion and take action open to all media consumers.

Since he didn't name names it is fair to assume he is offering opinion instead of fact — the same fault he apparently finds in the media.

Chemical control minimal

OTTAWA — Every day, Canadians buy and use dangerous products that they think are safe.

Consumers would like to believe that there are strict controls and rules of operation that laboratories testing dangerous compounds must follow.

There are no such rules.

They would like to believe that labs which cannot produce reliable results in safety-testing can lose certification to perform such work.

There is no such certification.

In fact, the notion that consumers are entitled to complete protection was described as "a dream" by Health Minister Monique Begin recently.

Toxicology lab

The minister's comment came after Simon de Jong, NDP member from Regina-West, asked the minister in the House of Commons last Friday if the government would establish a public toxicology lab to assure Canadians that the chemicals they contact daily are indeed safe.

"The honorable member's suggestion seems to me to be a dream", Begin replied.

There are 89 potentially deadly pesticides on the market in Canada. Products manufactured to kill bugs and weeds can sometimes kill people.

Canada requires all such compounds to be tested before a license for sale can be issued.

The 89 pesticides have such a license. That doesn't mean they are safe.

They are among a group of 97 products which were tested by an American firm called Industrial Biotest Laboratories (I.B.L.). On the basis of findings by that company, the pesticides went on the shelves of stores across the country.

While investigating discrepancies in a report on a drug called Napersan, also cleared by I.B.L., the Food and Drug Administration in the United States uncovered errors and what looked like misleading data. That was in 1977. Ever since then, authorities in the U.S. and Canada having been worrying over material submitted in support of the licences issued to permit sale of the products.

In the meantime, they are still being sold.

When a manufacturer of a pesticide wishes to market his product, it is up to him to prove the safety of the product. The recommendations for type of testing come from a number of departments, depending on the area of application.

It sounds very thorough: but it may not work.

The pesticides in question were each subjected to an average of eight individual tests. The expense of the work is difficult to calculate. A five month study on small mammals (such as rats) may cost $100,000.

The final decision on licensing is made by the department that set the testing standards. On the weight of I.B.L. studies, 97 pesticides hit the street.

MONIQUE BEGIN

The Department of Health and Welfare has released a list of the products. Eight have been confirmed safe but 89 are still under review as department staff sifts through mountains of material supporting the licences.

One name that appears on the review list is Vapona, a commercial name for a seemingly effective bug-killer that has been available for several years. The active ingredient in this and other 'no-pest strips' is dichlorvos. It kills bugs, but according to the red print on the back of the package, it may also be harmful to small birds or tropical fish. Most schools and day care centers won't use it. The package instructions warn users not to expose Vapona to the chronically ill.

Not too reassuring.

Diana Reisa, a spokesperson for the Special Pesticides Division of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency told F.P. News Service that Industrial Biotest is not the first private laboratory whose work was considered to be below standard.

"In some cases, there was evidence to suggest the labs had full knowledge of inaccurate testing."

There is also some question as to the role of manufacturers in these situations.

"Giving the responsibility of testing to the manufacturer is like getting the fox to guard the chicken coop," said Reisa, adding that proving misconduct by a company is "nearly impossible."

The American Society of Toxicologists has been trying to implement standards of practice for private labs in the form of a certification program to protect reputable firms and sanction abuses. The program is not yet in action.

The U.S. Federal Drug Administration carries out regular inspections of labs and provides "mandatory guidelines" for procedures. Inspectors in Canada make only random checks. There is no routine audit of procedure.

Even if Canada conducted rigid checks on domestic labs, it wouldn't do much good, because the majority of studies are done by foreign firms contracted at the discretion of the manufacturer.

U.N. control

De Jong suggests that standards might be set by a United Nations committee. This might also prevent hazardous products from seeking markets in the Third World after being banned by western industrial nations.

But according to Health Minister Begin, Canada benefits from exchanges of information from foreign sources and a public toxicology lab here would merely duplicate services already provided abroad.

So, the proposal to set up such a facility is not within the realm of practical politics.

In Canada, apparently, the watchword is to buy carefully and hope for the best.

WALTER STEWART

Tax laws need ventilation

OTTAWA — When Andre Oullet was minister of urban development, he proposed a program to make mortgage interest payments tax-deductible. The scheme, very like one later adopted by the Conservatives, and violently attacked by Oullet's fellow Liberals, was shot down.

That wasn't because of its merits (or lack thereof), but because the then deputy minister of finance, T.K. Shoyama, argued that it would be a "clear intrusion on the Minister of Finance."

Bureaucrats who have a bright idea for spending money, but are saddled with a weak minister, have a technique for winning out. As one deputy minister puts it, "If you know your minister can't win, you have to 'make' the Finance Minister." This is accomplished by getting to the top three mandarins in the finance department, who influence the minister.

The Registered Home Ownership Savings Plan was put into the Liberal budget in 1974 because finance mandarins thought it was "a tremendous campaign plank" for the coming election.

Cost unknown

The department's technical experts thought the idea so ridiculous they made up jokes about it. No one knew what it would cost, so a figure of $100 million was concocted and stuck in the budget.

By the time the mandarins discovered exactly how bad a policy they had embraced — it aids the affluent at the expense of general taxpayers, and does nothing to create new housing — it was too late. A senior finance official explained, "You can't have your minister backing down, even if it is bad policy; it doesn't look good."

When the tax on building materials was dropped from 12 per cent to five per cent, that was not done because the financial experts thought it was a good idea — they had no notion how it would work out — but because "people had been asking for it for so long, and it seemed an obvious thing to give them."

When a finance minister was told by a cabinet colleague that the nation needed an expansive budget, not a restrictive one, he ignored the advice, because his deputy minister thought otherwise. The deputy minister was full of wet hay, and Canadians paid the price.

These and a dozen other horror stories — are contained in an innocent-looking little blue-backed book called The Politics of Anticipation: Making Canadian Federal Tax Policy, recently published, and studiously ignored, in Ottawa.

It is the work of David A. Good, now a policy analyst in the Privy Council Office. It began as his Ph.D. thesis in public administration at the University of California, but has become part of a lively series of books being published by Carleton University's School of Public Administration.

The book won't get Good burned at the stake. On the other hand, if Good expects to be invited over to finance for a sandwich and a beer, he can forget it. He has gone quiet on the book, refusing to be interviewed, and hoping for the best.

Always a sound policy.

He may be helped by the fact that he has done his best to hide the identity of many of the participants — Ouellet and Shoyama, in the incident above, are not named.

There is also a certain amount of creative obfuscation in the the book; the phrasing reminds me of Huckleberry Finn's description of Pilgrim's Progress: "The statements was tough, but interesting." The spelling is also unique. I like "onslot" but I'm not sure "pursuasive" will fly.

But all this ducking and dodging won't do much good. In the end, Good has tough, rude things to say about the way taxes are set in this country.

He says, for example, that "Tax policy is a private affair."

It is settled by a group of about 50 men, centred around the minister and deputy minister of finance. At the hub of this inner circle are 12 lawyers, nine accountants and seven economists.

Which explains a lot.

Whether any particular measure is good, or needed, is not merely unimportant, but irrelevant. The "norms of the branch" — are "guardianship of the tax system and serving the minister."

The main technique for keeping Nosey Parkers out of the process — "preventing outside intrusion" is the way Good puts it — is never to consult, except in emergencies. Instead, the insiders try to anticipate the reactions of politicians, provincial governments and the lobbyists who flock onto the scene whenever tax measures come up for discussion, and base their recommendations on those guesses.

As far as possible, information is concealed, because, Good notes, "a passive, uninformed public helps to fill the public purse with the least resistence (sic)".

If the finance minister or his department is likely to be embarrassed by public discussion, it's better to give in than face the flack. For example, the tax sleuths knew that mining companies actually use a capital cost replacement rate for equipment of 7.9 per cent annually, although they get a tax write-off of 30 per cent. The giveaway was continued because the mining companies mount an effective lobby, and the bureaucrats didn't want to tangle with them. Better to pick on the poor old middle-class, instead.

Good has worked out the main rules the tax-makers live by, and they are enough to raise the hair on the back of any taxpayers neck. To wit:

— always underestimate revenues. This provides a pool of money that can be used for patronage handouts at the appropriate time, and makes the minister look good.

— never make a large change all at once. It is likely to be noticed. Instead, fool with the margins. "An old tax is a good tax", so a little fiddling with something already in place works better than trying something new on the frivolous ground that it needs doing.

— never give out enough information to "generate questions from a probing public."

— hedge all policy statements by constructing overly pessimistic scenarios about what might happen. If disaster strikes, the bureaucrat looks smart; if it doesn't, the minister looks good.

Fuzzy language

— use high-sounding phrases to fool the troops. Changes are always described as "equitable" or "in the national interest" when the mandarins who propose them have no idea if it make for greater equity or less, help the nation or help to wreck it. Sounding good beats being frank, every time.

Good describes a system in which a group of vested interests carve up the taxpayer for motives that have nothing to do with public policy, much to do with bureaucratic advancement and party politics.

He has a number of suggestions for reform, the most rivetting of which is this little gem: "More than anything else, the tax process requires ventilation."

Oh my, yes.

Waterfront ideal

In all the comments printed and spoken concerning the trade and convention centre, little recognition has been given to the fact that in the building of a convention centre we are embarking upon an extremely competitive business.

There seems to be no disagreement as to the desirability of having a trade and convention centre. The only question is the location on the waterfront.

Most people, I'm sure, will recognise the importance of location to the success of any business. If I may repeat that tired old business proverb "The three most important considerations for the success of a business is location, location, location." Why ignore this proverb in the selection of a site for our centre?

In due course a manager will be appointed. He will be expected to operate the centre efficiently and to make it such a success that in a few short years no subsidy will be required.

If the centre is located near the Executive House or adjacent to the renewed Crystal Garden we will give him a site that has little to recommend it over those in Winnipeg, Calgary or Edmonton. Yes, Victoria is a beautiful city with better weather and many attractions but the cities mentioned above have their own attractions. If we can give this hard working manager one further competitive advantage why not do so? The word of mouth reputation of Victoria's convention centre located on our beautiful Inner Harbor could be the clinching argument permitting the attraction of many more groups to this city.

Yes, the city and the provincial government have promised to underwrite any shortfall in the operation. All very generous, but in the end it will be you and I, the taxpayer and consumer who will be paying the bill.

It seems utter nonsense to me to locate the centre in a place where it will almost certainly require subsidy, not only for the initial years, but for all time.

If I may address my final remarks to the Honorable Hugh Curtis, upon whose shoulders rests the final decision, by all means yes, we need the convention centre and yes we need the waterfront. Let us give the manager of the centre every advantage to make it a break-even or possibly a profitable operation and let the subsidy money be used elsewhere. — Edmund J. W. Higgin, 2559 Chelsea Place

Sincere patriot

With regard to the tragic death of Mr. Sanjay Gandhi, younger son of the Prime Minister of India, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, it seems that the newspapers have gone straight into the political implications for India on the occasion of his death, without expressing a word of sympathy for the tragedy of a young man of only 33 years having been cut off from the land of the living — a young man with a good future ahead of him.

Whatever one may think of him — and he was much maligned both in his own country and elsewhere — there can be no doubt of his sincere patriotism and his determination to rid India of the evils which sorely beset her as quickly as possible, and had he lived, there is no doubt that he would have eventually become the Prime Minister of his country, and an excellent one at that! That some 300,000 mourners attended his funeral is surely proof of his popularity.

In the meantime, let us all remember Mrs. Indira Gandhi and also Sanjay's widow at this time of their great loss. — Richard D. Corrance, 710 Cormorant Street

THE GLOBE AND MAIL

If a person believes strongly enough that something should be the case, it is all too easy, after a time, to believe it is the case. Confronted by evidence of social disintegration among native Indian communities, and the cultural and spiritual dislocation which many of their members suffer, the wider public has often sought comfort in the notion that every effort has been made to improve their welfare, and that a disproportionate amount of money has been spent to help native Indians survive within a country of alien cultures.

The truth is that the funds have been miserably disproportionate. A federal report on the economic and social well-being of Canadian Indians, released last week by the department of Indian Affairs, shows that expenditures by the federal government on the Indians' behalf have lagged dramatically behind those made for the rest of society. Between 1970 and 1979, funds for most social programs increased, per capita and in real dollars, by 128 per cent; funds for Indians increased by 14 per cent. Far from making great demands on the public purse, Canada's Indians have been deprived of a fair share of Canada's resources.

The hardships catalogued in this report have attracted notice individually in the past but, gathered together, they present a bleak and unrelenting picture. In some reserves in Saksatchewan and Manitoba, as few as 10 per cent of the houses have running water and sewage disposal. Other facilities are crowded and substandard; the report cites a need for 11,000 new homes. Life expectancy on the reserves is 10 years below the national average; violent deaths occur at three times the national rate; the suicide rate is six times higher.

Much of the evidence suggests that Ottawa has reacted to cases of human desperation with institutional responses. More than half the native population — there are 300,000 Indians in Canada, of whom 210,000 live on reserves — have grown dependent on social assistance and welfare payments from the government. Twenty years ago, only a third of the population needed that aid. Indian communities lack an independent economic base, with the result that a growing number of young Indians are leaving the reserves to work in prairie cities. There, disoriented by an unfamiliar white community, a high number turn to alcoholism; many wind up in jail.

The pressure tells. The rate of juvenile delinquency among Indians is three times higher than among the rest of the population; while more than 37 per cent of other Canadians are working, only 18 per cent of the Indian population has jobs. And the government, says the report, stands by wringing its hands; it is inconsistent in its services to Indians off the reserves, and it betrays "a lack of co-ordination and recognition for Indians on reserves".

'Ape talk' splits scientists

By NIGEL HAWKES

LONDON — Can apes talk? Samuel Pepys was introduced to a baboon in August 1661, and was so struck by its similarity to man that he felt sure it "already understood much English" and wondered if it might not be taught to speak or make signs.

More than 300 years later, Pepys' innocent question has given rise to a furiously entertaining scientific row in the U.S. On one side are those who claim that they have taught apes to talk, or at least to use signs; on the other, skeptics who say that the evidence is as scanty as that which persuades some doting mothers that the first gurgles of their infants are intelligent conversation.

Angry words have been spoken — by the scientists, not the apes. The ape-teachers, says one of the critics, have involved themselves "in the most rudimentary circus-like performances" or at best have been the victims of self-deception.

Such criticisms "embarrassingly reveal (the critics') incompetence," the ape teachers have sniffed back. The criticisms are "replete with errors, both technical and logical" and amount to no more than vituperation. It is all splendid stuff for those who like scientists to behave like people.

The core of the argument is rather more profound. Those who claim success in teaching apes to talk point to the apes' ability to use words creatively, either to construct sentences (a key stage in the development of human speech) or to create new and often poetic images.

Koko, for example, a gorilla trained by Francine Patterson at Stanford, is credited with having described a zebra as a "white tiger". Washoe, the original talking chimp who learned sign language from Allen and Beatrice Gardner at the University of Nevada, called a watermelon a "drink-fruit" and a swan as "water-bird".

Such triumphs received extensive and mostly uncritical publicity until another ape-teacher, Herbert Terrace of Columbia University, threw a spanner into the works. He had been trying to train a young chimpanzee called — a subtle academic joke, this — Nim Chimpsky. (The reference is to a famous scholar of language, Naom Chomsky, whose theories of how language is acquired by human children is relevant to the debate).

For a while Terrace thought he was succeeding in teaching Nim to use the sign language Ameslan. But closer study convinced him that Nim's "language" differed widely from the developing language of human children.

For a lot of the time, Nim simply repeated the signs the trainer made. When he did create "sentences" they tended to consist of the same few words repeated, as for example in: "give orange me give eat orange me eat orange give me eat orange give me you."

Is this a sentence or simply a string of vaguely related words? The question is vital, for it is only in the creation of new sentences that language can be recognized. Any animal can be taught a vocabulary; but turning that vocabulary into language is the step that counts.

Terrace's work did not go down well with the ape-trainers. "It is the shoddiest piece of work I have ever seen in this area," Allen Gardner told Science, with all the restraint that has characterized the argument so far.

Others have championed Terrace, including some who believe that the ape-trainers have been taken in by a phenomenon almost as old as experimental psychology itself. This might be called the "Clever Hans Syndrome".

Clever Hans was a horse who could do arithmetic. Asked a question by his master, he would tap his hoof until he got to the answer, and then stop. He did it by watching his master's unconscious reactions and responding when a tiny movement of the head told the horse that he had reached the right number.

He was responding to cues that his master didn't even know he was giving. Experiments showed that Hans could detect head movements as small as one-fifth of a millimetre, which is remarkably clever but is not the same as being able to do maths.

So are Washoe and Koko just modern examples of Clever Hans? To say so implies that their trainers have been less careful than they ought to have been in eliminating unconscious cueing, which may explain why they find the criticism so wounding.

Most probably, the chimps will have to do a lot better before the skeptics can be won over. A chimp that could consistently create new sentences, in conversation with people other than its regular trainers, might settle the argument. But for the moment the animals have nothing to say; except for the chimpanzee quoted by Science as saying of the controversy that "those who live in the academic jungle shouldn't ape the law of the jungle." And even he asked that his name not be quoted.

Fluorescent light blamed for ills

By ROBERT PARKER
London Observer

An inquiry is to be held into the apparent harmful effects on health of the fluorescent strip lighting under which increasing numbers of people are spending their working lives.

Many people complain about strip lighting — some are even allergic to it — and it is now widely argued that ordinary white fluorescent lighting causes headaches, eye strain and difficulty in concentration.

More controversially, some researchers suggest that fluorescent lighting can be a significant factor in general poor health, contributing to a feeling of malaise and fatigue, as well as an influence on heart disease and cancer and other serious health problems.

The inquiry is being set up in Britain by the Lighting Industry Federation, which represents all the big lighting manufacturers, and it is expected to start in about two weeks. The federation has been stung into action by what it calls increased "popular fallacies" about light. The inquiry will also examine a little-known new kind of strip lighting which is claimed to have none of the harmful effects of traditional lighting.

There has been remarkably little interest in this new type of light, called full spectrum lighting. It was developed in the U.S. and gives a close approximation to natural daylight.

There are specific cases from the U.S. which suggest that people in offices with full spectrum lighting have much greater immunity to 'flu and colds, that they can concentrate better and are less likely to take time off.

It is also claimed that under full spectrum lighting people are healthier, happier, and more productive, and even that they are less likely to develop heart disease and cancer.

These claims are viewed with skepticism by many scientists and with cynicism by the lighting industry in general. The claims are just a commercial ploy without any basis in fact, it is said.

Yet the use of full spectrum lighting on plants and animals has had dramatic results. When substituted for normal fluorescent light in fish tanks, many plants, which before had been difficult to grow, start to flourish. In London and Houston zoos certain types of snake and lizard which had been languishing and proving difficult to feed and breed suddenly perked up when the lighting was changed to full spectrum.

Although the light is starting to be used in North America, it is virtually unknown in Britain. Only one small company in West London is trying to market the light — which fits straight into existing fluorescent fittings.

One disadvantage is that it costs twice as much as the conventional tube, but its makers claim that it uses 20 per cent less electricity and guarantee it for two years.

Some interest is developing, however. A few hospitals are having the lights installed experimentally and the Light and Health Research Council, a charitable body set up to chart the largely unfathomed connection between light and health, is now supporting limited university experiments to test the effect on mice.

Hardwin Tibbs, who runs the council, says: "We know that light seen by the eye does affect hormone production in the body and the involuntary part of the nervous system. It now appears from the American work, that we are following up, that the balance of colors in the light is important too.

"We know that mice under so-called full spectrum light are less prone to tooth decay. Ordinary fluorescent light has been linked with heart disease and even cancer has been suggested. When you look at the biochemistry involved, these things do seem quite reasonable and the work we are doing is aimed at finding out."

Appreciating the arts

Russell Baker

NEW YORK — Vincent Van Gogh used to cut off his ear and send it to ladyfriends as a gift. Afterwards he would paint a picture of himself without his ear on. Everybody said he was a loser and possibly crazy.

That was before paintings began fetching $5 million-per-canvas and sometimes $6.4 million at auctions. If people had known Van Gogh was doing such valuable work they would have spoken better of him. It's wonderful how $5 million in a man's pocket improves the public's estimate of his character.

In his own day, of course, Van Gogh himself did not realize he would become the darling of people who fly around in private jets. We can hardly fault him for this failure of vision, since the Wright brothers hadn't invented the airplane at the time, much less the private-jet set.

In those days, no matter how rich you were, you had to be satisfied with going around in barouches and broughams and hansom cabs. There was none of that Rio-this-morning, Paris-this-afternoon business which today puts people in such free-spending spirits and hones their appreciation of the arts. Bumping along behind horses at three miles an hour, they were too uncomfortable to cherish their artists.

The horse-drawn people of Paris used to say, "I don't mind an artist as long as he knows his place". His place was an unheated garret empty of all furnishings, including food. Such was Vincent Van Gogh's digs.

Parisians living today remember their grandparents telling them of seeing Van Gogh lurking outside cafes with his ear off, waylaying acquaintances and mumbling: "Could you lend me a couple of francs til the end of the week?"

My own grandmother recalled touring Europe as a child with her parents and staying at a hotel in Arles when the bellboy delivered a small package containing an artistically wrapped ear. American to the core, she was incapable of understanding Europeans and made a scene with the manager.

"Is this someone's idea of a joke?" she demanded.

The manager examined the package. "Ah, madame, you are the accidental recipient of Monsieur Van Gogh's ear," he explained. "It was intended for one of his ladyfriends on the third floor and has been delivered to you by mischance."

Unfortunately, she insisted that the hotel take it off her hands. If she had kept it in the family, we would be rich today, for a genuine Van Gogh ear is far more rare than a Leonardo painting and might fetch up to $50 million if auctioned at Sotheby Parke Bernet.

Curiously, Van Gogh himself did not suspect that he was a walking gold mine, but wasted his time drinking absinthe with prosititues and quarrelling with Gauguin about how to mix pigments and whether it was all right to paint a cornfield purple.

Afterwards the two of them would make it up and go into Avignon and try to borrow a couple of francs til the end of the week from people in the bistros. They presented a disgusting spectacle to the solid citizens of the town, according to the memoirs of the famous art dealer, Magasin, who was in that part of the world at the time looking for paintings by long dead artists to market.

"On this particular evening" he wrote, "Van Gogh, though he had his ear on, looked particularly reprehensible. 'How's about lending us a couple of francs til the end of the week?' he asked.

"I was repelled by this waste of talent. 'Vincent' I said, 'you are one of humanity's great artists. Quit worrying about eating, go home and paint, and your struggles will be rewarded with millions and millions of francs per canvas.'

"Vincent asked how long he would have to wait for the francs to start rolling in. 'About 90 years,' I said. This seemed to depress him profoundly, for he cut off his ear and sent it to a ladyfriend in Dijon."

Magasin cautioned Van Gogh against squandering parts of himself so casually, lest he flood the market and drive down their potential value once art buyers became interested in him. "And whatever you do," he advised Van Gogh, "don't cut off any of the fingers on your painting hand."

Despite a tendency to be despondent about his work taking a few generations to pay off, Van Gogh was good sport enough to take Magasin's advice on this last point, and so we have his magnificent paintings today to keep us — or a few of us lucky enough to own private jets — comfortably hedged against inflation. Magasin put it beautifully when he told Van Gogh, "People may not know anything about painting, but they know when a painter is dead enough not to turn out any more pictures that will reduce the value of their collections."

N-clouds drift over Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A retired U.S. Air Force colonel says radioactive clouds from nuclear tests in Nevada have drifted over Canada at least twice since Canada and the United States signed a limited nuclear test ban treaty in 1963.

Col. Raymond Brim, former chief of an radiation tracking unit, said in an interview from his home in Utah, Colo., that the treaty violations took place in 1968 and 1970.

The test ban treaty, which ended most atmospheric testing, prohibits detonation of any nuclear weapon whose radioactive debris might escape the country's borders.

Brim said there have been 40 radiation releases in Nevada since the treaty was signed. The numbers of times fallout was tracked to the border was classified information, he added.

But information has been declassified on the 1968 incident, when a cloud of radioactive debris from a nuclear test passed over Hamilton, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

The test, code-named Schooner, involved the detonation of a 31-kiloton bomb that blew a crater five times the size of football field in the Nevada desert floor and released a massive cloud of radioactive debris. (In comparison, the U.S. atomic bomb that destroyed Hiroshma in the Second World War was the equivalent of 12.5 kilotons of TNT.)

Even though Canadian health officials said the level of contamination reaching Canada from the test would be unlikely to pose a health risk, measurements taken by McMaster University showed the cloud was sufficiently radioactive to raise the December, 1968, monthly average in Hamilton to almost 15 times the November average.

Brim said the 1970 test, code-named Baneberry, apparently sent radioactive debris into Western Canada. Where the trail of radioactivity from the other 40 Nevada releases went "depended on the wind patterns at the time of the tests; you don't have a wall there that goes up to the 40,000-foot level."

Brim testified before a subcommittee of the U.S. House of Representatives in Nevada last fall that air force planes tracked the Schooner cloud for four days, but when it crossed the border, the chase was called off to avoid Canadian inquiries.

A final report said the radiation trail disappeared near Minnesota.

Newsprint shortage possible

MONTREAL (CP) — North American newspapers face the prospect of newsprint shortages as strikes by Eastern Canadian forest workers and pulp and paper personnel continue to spread.

Abitibi-Price Inc., the world's largest producer of newsprint, has seen eight of its mills in Quebec, Ontario and Newfoundland shut down by strikes, nearly all of them in the last week.

Company spokesman Charles Tittemore said today that while many newspapers appear to have good stocks of newsprint, the closures "will probably cause some difficulties."

He added that no negotiations are planned for the immediate future with the 35,000-member Canadian Paperworkers Union (CPU).

Union spokesman Neville Hamilton reiterated today that the CPU plans to shut down a total of 12 Abitibi-Price locations in Eastern Canada by Saturday.

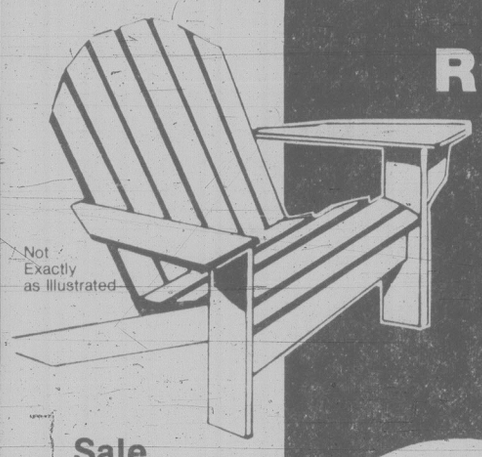

Hamilton predicted the strike action "should have a significant effect on newspapers," since inventories average only 35 to 39 days newsprint supply.

Toronto-based Abitibi-Price has been singled out by the union as a model for settlements with other companies.

CAN WESTCOAST SAVINGS TAKE ON THE BIG BANKS AND WIN?

Can Victoria's Westcoast Savings take on the big banks?

Victoria says

And we can prove it.

Right now the big eastern banks are bringing in the new improved chequing accounts and telling us to "chuck our old cheque books" and that "every penny counts". But they're not telling us how much interest they're paying or all the account details. (It isn't even in the fine print). The fact is, it's only 3 or 3½% and there is a minimum balance to be maintained.

If you're going to "chuck your old cheque book", we'd like you to look at our Prime 55 chequing/savings account. It's not a "new improved" account but it does pay 9¼% interest, and has no charges. The interest is paid monthly and is calculated on the minimum monthly balance. Prime 55 is for those 55 or better. If you're under 55 The Westcoaster chequing package pays 8% and has many other benefits all for only $4.00 per month. Westcoast offers six day service and full inter-branch banking too. But our benefits go beyond our interest rates. The best part of our service is our people. All our staff try to be friendly and efficient, never too busy to help. Drop into any Westcoast branch – they're all open 6 days a week. find out for yourself why 1 in 5 Victorians have already said "yes" to Westcoast Savings.

Joe gave fans reason to sing different tune

It may have been "singalong day" in the rest of Canada Tuesday with everyone humming the new version of O Canada.

But at Sandown Raceway on our country's 113th birthday, standarbred racing fans could be excused for having a different version.

It went more like "Way To Go Joe." And why not?

For driver Joe Hudon had an almost perfect afternoon before a record crowd that contributed a record mutuel handle on a beautiful summer's day.

Hudon, the leading driver at the meeting with 49 victories, scored six of those wins Tuesday along with two place finishes in just eight drives.

It was his second six-victory performance of the meeting.

The crowd was an all-time high of 2,525, surpassing the previous record of 2,305 on opening day this season and the mutuel total was $180,612, $16,202 more than $164,410 which was wagered on the final day in 1979.

Total mutuel handle for the first 26 days of the meeting stands at $3,118,502, an increase of approximately 30 per cent over last year.

The triactor pool of $33,669 in the ninth was a record, while the 10th race set a single race mark for win, place show and exactor wagering of $19,160.

In addition, the track was lightning fast and there were five new lifetime bests among the winners with Commando Jove, a four-year old bay colt, driven by Hudon, contributing the quickest time in the fourth and a new season's best.

Owned by Hudon and Ken Clement of Surrey, Commando Jove won as he pleased by about 10 lengths and went the distance in a crackling 2:02 in a race for non-winners of four lifetime and returned $3.40.

It was Commando Jove's third win here to go with a pair of place finishes in just five starts this season.

Shady Hill Vicki, a four-year old bay mare owned by former hockey player Pat Lundy, also won her third victory in the featured ninth, also had her best ever time and also had Hudon in the seat.

Her time was a smart 2:03.3 in a driving three-horse finish with Handle Carefully and Fort Tilden.

One of the public favorites, Shady Hill Vicki returned $7.90, $3.30 and $2.60 and combined with Handle Carefully and Fort Tilden for a $104.10 triactor which was held in conjunction with the ninth race, rather than the 10th.

Sandown Raceway general manager Jim Keeling Sr. explained it was not possible nor permissible to have a triactor with only seven horses because of the wagering set-up and racing commission rules. And when there were only seven horses listed to start the 10th race, the change was made.

Hudon had his other victories with Phanton Dancer ($3.90) in the second, Arvaleigh Slipper ($5.30) in the fourth, Cedarwood Champ ($5.80) in the fifth and Easy Van ($4.00) in the eighth.

He finished second with Tara La Belle in the third and Chocolate Wave in the sixth.

Other best-ever times were recorded by Katie Wonder in the first, Union Miss in the second and Suito Sampson in the 10th.

All of which bodes well for this Saturday's Invitational, which will feature some of the top horses in Western Canada and which is billed as an attempt to break the two-minute barrier at Sandown.

And the mark may well tumble. For among the expected entries — the horses already are here — are Over Burden, the track record holder of 2:01.2; his stablemate Billie Barker (both are owned by Jim Mohorich); Michael's Glory, jointly owned by driver Rick Graham, among others; Baron Nuff, Hudon's pride and joy, and Magna Almahurst, all of which have been running at Edmonton. In addition, other possible starters are Amortizer's Beauty, Andys Peyton, Loulabelle Choice and Damuraz.

Over Burden is the best known and this year at Edmonton lowered the Western Canada record to a sparkling 1:57.1. Baron Nuff is the winner of all four legs of the Attorney General Classic at Cloverdale this spring. Michael's Glory has a 1:59.2 clocking to his credit, Damuraz has run a 2:00.2 mile at Edmonton, Andy's Peyton has won over $10,000 this season while Amortizer's Beauty and Loulabelle Choice had the fastest mark of the current meeting, 2:02.2, until Commando Jove broke it.

STEVE OVETT . . . new mile king

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Sebastian Coe won one and lost one Tuesday — much to the delight of Steve Ovett.

The two Britons turned an international track and field meet into something more memorable as Coe shattered the world record in the 1,000-metre race and then stood and watched as Ovett broke Coe's year-old standard in the mile.

"It tastes terrific," said Ovett after covering the mile on the lightning-fast Bislett track in three minutes, 48.8 seconds — two tenths of a second faster the mark Coe set on this same track last year. "One of my big goals this year was to take the record from Coe."

Coe wasn't thinking the same thing about Rick Wohlhuter or the record the American set in 1976.

"I had no plans of trying to beat the world record," said Coe. "My aim was to beat (Willi) Wuhlbeck."

But those thoughts changed about 200 metres from the finish line.

"When I passed the 800-metre mark in 1:44.4 (2.4 seconds ahead of Wohlhuter's pace in 1976) I realized I could do it," the 22-year-old student explained.

And he did, crossing the finish line in 2:13.40 to better Wohlhuter's standard of 2:13.90.

Wuhlbeck of West Germany finished second in 2:14.53, a national record, while Olympic 1,500-metre champion John Walker of New Zealand was third in 2:16.57, also a national standard.

As the crowd of 22,500 stood to applaud Coe, Ovett began his quest in the mile.

The 24-year-old from Brighton passed the 800-metre mark in 1:52.8, the 1,000-metre mark in 2:22.8 and turned the 1,500 in 3:32.7.

The victory in the 1-2-3 British sweep was Ovett's 42nd straight. Stephen Cram finished second in 3:53.8 and Graham Williamson was third in 3:56.4.

Coe and Ovett are not considered the best of friends, and have consciously avoided facing each other before the Moscow Olympic Games, which are just three weeks away.

Their meeting in Moscow may well have been worth the wait.

In other major events, Irishman Eamonn Coghlan captured the 3,000 metres in 7:37.6; American Renaldo Nehemiah edged countryman Rod Milburn in the 110-metre hurdles and Mac Wilkins of the U.S. won the discus with a toss of 67.056 metres.

SEBASTIAN COE . . . 2:13.40

Pair of Whitecaps 'going home'

VANCOUVER (CP) — English international midfielder Alan Ball and Scottish international winger Willie Johnston were released Tuesday from Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League.

The two are returning to Britain immediately — Ball, 33, to start work on his new job as player-manager of third division Blackpool; Johnston, 32, to look for a new club in either England or Scotland.

Neither will be in the lineup when Whitecaps play at home against Atlanta Chiefs tonight.

The parting of the ways was amicable, said Whitecaps coach Tony Waiters.

Ball, captain and midfield general of the Whitecaps, has been in and out of the squad with injuries this season, but Waiters said the decision had little bearing on the decision.

After joining the Whitecaps at the mid-point of the season last year, Ball scored eight goals and had 10 assists in 15 games to finish as the team's second-leading scorer. He was then named most valuable player during the Soccer Bowl playoffs, which the Whitecaps won.

This season, playing in 16 of the Whitecaps 19 games, Ball has scored two goals and had three assists.

Johnston, 32, has been one of the most effervescent players on the Whitecaps' roster since his arrival from England's West Bromwich Albion three days before the start of the 1979 season. Last season, he was named most popular player on the team.

"What it really comes down to is that both wanted to go home," said Waiters. "Alan to start work on his Blackpool team which will be starting the season shortly; Willie to continue his playing career with a British club.

"From the club's point of view it seemed the best thing to do to go along with their wishes and try to make the best of it. There was no point in putting obstacles in the way."

Waiters said Johnston would be heading back to his former home in the Midlands, and the Whitecaps would try to expedite his transfer to a British club.

Waiters said he could not comment on rumors in Britain that Johnston would go to Blackpool to play for Ball, but Johnston said Tuesday there he will not go to Blackpool.

He said he wants to stay in the Midlands, with Scotland as his second choice.

Johnston played in 28 of Vancouver's 30 league games last year, scoring only one goal but adding 12 assists. In semi-final play last year, Johnston scored two important goals against New York Cosmos.

This year, Johnston appeared in 14 games, starting in 12, and scored two goals and two assists.

Two league matches were played Tuesday, with New England Tea Men tripping Houston Hurricane 2-1 and Memphis Rogues clipping California Surf 3-2.

Garnet Moen of Victoria was the hero for the Tea Men, hitting an unassisted goal in the 88th minute to snap a 1-1 deadlock and produce the victory that evened New England's won-lost record at 10-10.

Tonight in sports

TONIGHT

Another chapter in the long-standing lacrosse rivalry between Victoria Shamrocks and Nanaimo Timbermen will be renewed when the Western Association teams square off in Memorial Arena at 8.

In inter-locking baseball action, the junior Merchants face Capital Radiators of the Senior Amateur League at Lambrick Park, starting at 6:30.

Also at 6:30, Oak Bay and Central Saanich will square off at Juan de Fuca in the continuing Greater Victoria Little League winners' tournament.

Softball games, with the usual variety, all start at 6:30.

Television

Scheduled baseball offering on TV (channels 2 and 6) at 7:30 is an American League game between Toronto Blue Jays and Baltimore Orioles, but the possibility of a change may present views with the important Montreal-Philadelphia meeting in the National League. Channel 3 also may alter programing to present the Expos' game.

Channel 11 will carry the North American Soccer League meeting between Seattle Sounders and Tulsa while Wimbledon Update will be shown on channel 5 at 11:30.

Spokane joins WHL loop

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Western Hockey League was realigned at the annual meeting of its board of governors.

Spokane was added to the Western Division, while Winnipeg became the new team in the Eastern Division, boosting to 12 the number of teams in the major junior league.

Board member Ed Chynoweth said the league decided that the playoffs this year will include the top four teams in the Western Division and the top six in the Eastern Division.

Round-robin tournaments have been dropped, he said.

The board also voted to allow Nelson Skalbania to own 49 per cent of Calgary Wranglers.

Skalbania earlier bought New Westminster Bruins, but Chynoweth said the second application does not ask for a controlling interest in the Wranglers, and therefore does not violate league rules allowing a controlling interest in only one team at a time.

Chynoweth said he has been asked to become president of the association, and will decide in the next few days whether to accept.

The governors decided the league will run Sept. 26 to March 25 and will play a 72-game schedule.

A split is a split to Blues and fans

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Some of the younger fans found enjoyment in one split, but the older ones may have had mixed feelings about the second one to come up at Royal Athletic Park on Tuesday.

The enjoyable one was a 181-foot banana split, a holiday promotion that helped lure 1,021 fans to a Northwest Baseball League doubleheader between Victoria's Blues and the Salem Senators.

The second "split" settled nothing in a battle between the league's third-place clubs. Salem, third in the South, embarassed the Blues 16-3 with a 17-hit attack in the opener but Victoria, running third in the Northern Division, salvaged a measure of respect by rebounding for a 7-2 win.

Salem's first-game antics put Blues' manager Jim Gattis between the devil and the deep sea.

Senators churned out 12 of their runs in the final two innings. It didn't sit well with many of the fans that provided Blues with the biggest home crowd of the season.

Gattis' answer gives you an idea of how professional managers think.

"When we got into trouble, I went with my best man (Tony Nigro)," replied Gattis. "He came in with the bases loaded and one out. Salem tries a squeeze play but we throw the ball away. As far as I'm concerned, Nigro did the job.

"But by time we get out of the inning, the game is out of our reach. It's 9-2.

"There really isn't much difference if you lose by 13, nine or two runs. I can't go using up all my good pitchers because we have a chance to get a split in the second game.

"That's what we did."

Senators' bombardment included a pair of homers by Dan Johnson, who also managed a single in four trips to the plate. Ros Majam and John Vestal also banged out three hits while Lazondo Washington, Nick Belmonte and Jesse Moore each collected a pair for the Blues.

Gattis, as the designated hitter, was Victoria's offensive spark with a three-for-three performance and three runs batted in in the second game. Shortstop Rod Murphy added a pair of hits to help Mark Liber chalk up his first victory.

Blues, who have relied on Gattis and assistant Barry Moss for much of their power-hitting performances, may have a new man in the lineup tonight — one that could add to Victoria's offense.

Canadian-born Gary Humpston, a first baseman who committed only three errors in three seasons of collegiate ball while at Pepperdine College, arrived in Victoria Tuesday night. He's a switch-hitter.

RECORD IMPROVED

A depressed Seaver 'talking about the end'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tom Seaver, nursing a painful shoulder and a weak season, thinks he may have played the last card in his baseball career.

"This conceivably could be the end of my career," Seaver said after he lasted only four innings in an 8-1 Cincinnati Reds loss Monday to San Francisco Giants.

The 35-year-old right-hander said he would meet with manager John McNamara, who watched Seaver give up seven hits, two homers and five runs before lifting him Monday night.

"I'm talking about the end," Seaver said. "I'm not doing any good pitching the way I am.

"My (right) shoulder is still sore and I don't know what it is. It's more than a dull pain when I throw. It's not getting any better and it's not going to get any better as long as I keep pitching.

"It's not frustrating. It's depressing — not because of the success I've had but because I love what I do. I'm not doing any good for the people I work for or the people I play with the way I'm pitching. I haven't the slightest idea if I'll stay in the rotation."

McNamara said he wouldn't consider taking Seaver out of the starting rotation until they have discussed the situation thoroughly.

TOM SEAVER . . . 'not doing any good'

Seaver has never had a losing season in the majors or the minors and has never failed to win at least 11 games. His 238 career victories ties him with Steve Carlton of Philadelphia Phillies for 37th on the all-time victory list and his 2,928 strikeouts is the fifth-highest total in baseball.

But Seaver's 4.60 earned-run average this season contrasts with his previous lifetime mark of 2.55, and 3.14 last year. He has completed just one of 14 starts this year, compared with a yearly average of 15 complete games.

During his previous 13 seasons with New York Mets and Cincinnati, Seaver had the reputation with reporters of being a co-operative, outgoing player. But Monday he rarely looked up as he tended to his fingernails, thinking quietly before answering reporters' questions.

One veteran Cincinnati writer said: "He's been down before, but this is about as depressed as I've ever seen him."

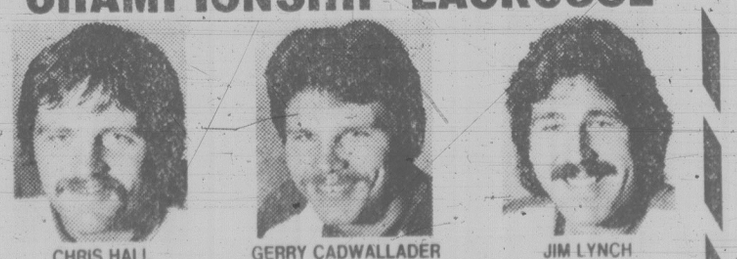

Victoria kicker, Ed Murray, signs pact with Detroit Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Placekicker Ed Murray of Victoria has signed with Detroit Lions of the National Football League team, it was announced Monday.

Murray, 23, was a seventh-round draft pick of the Lions out of Tulane University. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

The Lions also said they have signed wide receiver DeWayne Jett of the University of Hawaii.

Irish, Timbermen eye different goals

It's just about as crucial as crucial can be for the two Island clubs in the Western Lacrosse Association here tonight.

Victoria Shamrocks and Nanaimo Timbermen each have everything to gain from their game at Memorial Arena. But for totally different reasons.

For the Rocks it's a chance to start a move into a first-place tie with Coquitlam Adanacs while for the Timbermen, a victory would appear vital to their playoff chances considering the move which is being made by the last-place Vancouver Burrards.

Burrards won their sixth game of the season Monday night, a 14-13 squeaker over the WLA-leading Coquitlam Adanacs, and in doing so moved within two points of the T-Men and the final playoff position.

Meanwhile the defeat was the seventh of the year for the Adanacs who now lead the Shamrocks by only four points with the Irish having two games in hand.

Victoria has won all four meetings with the Timbermen this season.

Burrards actually have won seven games but one was taken away for using an ineligible player.

Vancouver led 5-1 at the end of the first period, 12-6 at the end of the second, and were 14-8 with eight minutes left in the game.

Coquitlam then scored five goals, the last coming with just 45 seconds remaining.

Erik Otterstrom and Doug Hayes scored three goals each for Vancouver, while Dan Perreault and Ron Pinder had a pair each.

Ward Sanderson, making his first start in over a year, Dave Tasker, Pat Ryan and Bruce Turris added singles.

Matt Aitken, Dave Cochrane and Randy Bryan each scored three goals for Coquitlam. Jim Aitchison added two and Mario Govorchin and Gord Quilty had the others.

In the league scoring race, it's still a one-two performance for Kevin Alexander and Jim Lynch of the Shamrocks with Brian Evans of Nanaimo holding down third place.

Lynch is second in both categories with 83 points and 43 goals while Evans leads in assists with 51.

Game time is 8 p.m.

NAVRATILOVA
... barely escapes defeat

Martina has long struggle before beating Billie Jean

LONDON (CP) — Defending champion Martina Navratilova clawed her way back from the brink of defeat to beat veteran Billie Jean King 7-6, 1-6, 10-8 in the quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis championships today.

Navratilova, bidding for her third successive Wimbledon title, seldom approached her peak, and King, 35, gave one of the best of her long career.

King, winner of a record 20 Wimbledon titles, including six singles crowns, trailed by one set to love when play resumed today, but dropped only seven points in taking the second set 6-1 in just 17 minutes.

Navratilova was unable to get her first serve working and missed a number of volleys. She hit back to lead 2-0 in the third set but King came back again to tie, then had her big chance when serving for the match at 6-5.

Navratilova broke back to love, however, and King then saved eight match points in three different games before the 23-year-old champion finally took the match.

On Tuesday, Wojtek Fibak advanced to the quarter-finals for the first time in his life and was as surprised as anybody by his success.

Bjorn Borg did nothing surprising in making the quarters by defeating Hungarian underdog Balazs Taroczy, 6-1, 7-5, 6-2, for a record 32nd straight singles triumph. The victory broke the mark of 31 straight he shared with Australian Rod Laver.

"It's satisfying for me to break Laver's record," The Swedish ace said. "That was my aim when I came here.

"I decided I would first go for the record and after that think about winning the title again."

Winning the title wasn't even on Fibak's mind after the first two sets against Vitas Gerulaitis.

The Polish doubles expert staged a remarkable recovery to upset fourth-seeded American, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3, 8-6.

Fibak now meets another American, unseeded Brian Gottfried, in the last eight. Gottfried has not dropped a set in his four matches.

Six of the eight quarter-finalists in the men's singles are Americans, with defending-champion Borg and Fibak the exceptions. Third seed Jimmy Connors defeated unseeded Hank Pfister to round out the field of eight. Their all-American matchup was suspended because of darkness and rain and on resumption today, Connors wrapped it up 6-4, 6-7, 6-1, 7-6.

Borg plays sixth-seeded American Gene Mayer, who is in the last eight for the first time, while last year's beaten finalist, Roscoe Tanner, plays Connors.

Andrea Jaeger, 15-year-old darling of the Wimbledon fans, had her dream of reaching the final round shattered when she was stopped by Chris Evert Lloyd, 6-1, 6-1. Another American teen-age sensation, 17-year-old Tracy Austin, won 6-3, 6-3 against South African Greer Stevens.

Gene's 'tough' reliever again rescues Twins

By Associated Press

For Gene Mauch, there's nothing better than an iron-tough relief pitcher.

The Minnesota manager has never won a pennant or division title in 19 years as a major league skipper, but many regard him as one of the best strategists and students of baseball. One of his secrets is having a reliever who can come into games in the late innings and hold a lead.

"People who know how to pitch the eighth and ninth inning — you can't play without them," Mauch says.

In the past, he has relied on firemen like Mike Marshall with the Twins and Montreal Expos and Bill Campbell, who had 17 victories and 20 saves for Mauch's Twins in 1976.

This year Mauch's stopper is Doug Corbett, who on Tuesday night cut off a Kansas City rally in the eighth inning and shook off a pulled leg muscle in the ninth to get a 2-1 American League victory over the Royals.

Despite Minnesota's mediocre record, Corbett now is 5-2 with a 2.28 earned-run average.

In other American League games Tuesday, Baltimore Orioles blanked Toronto Blue Jays 2-0, New York Yankees edged Boston Red Sox 3-2, Cleveland Indians nipped Detroit Tigers 8-7, California Angels whipped Chicago White Sox 5-2, Milwaukee Brewers downed Oakland A's 5-2 and Seattle Mariners outlasted Texas Rangers, 6-5.

Last week, Bill Russell's error cost Jerry Reuss a perfect game. Tuesday night, the shortstop made another miscue and it cost Los Angeles Dodgers a victory.

Russell, voted the National League's starting shortstop for the July 8 all-star baseball game in Dodgers Stadium, committed a throwing error to account for the only baserunner in Reuss's 8-0 no-hitter against San Francisco Giants last Friday.

Reuss was on the mound again Tuesday night, and this time Russell's throwing error led to three unearned runs that helped San Diego Padres beat Los Angeles 4-1.

Reuss pitched seven innings and allowed just four hits, and all four San Diego runs were unearned.

An error by Pedro Guerrero helped San Diego score in the first inning without benefit of a hit. Russell's error with two out in the third letin the second run, and Dave Winfield followed it up with a two-run homer.

That was more than enough to beat the Dodgers.

In other National League games Tuesday, Philadelphia Phillies edged Montreal Expos 5-4 in 11 innings, Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 3-2 in 10 innings, Atlanta Braves routed Houston Astros 13-4, Chicago Cubs nipped New York Mets 4-3 and San Francisco Giants defeated Cincinnati Reds, 4-1.

Scots teams pay $90,000

GLASGOW (Reuter) — The Scottish Football Association fined Glasgow soccer clubs Rangers and Celtic $45,000 each Tuesday for a riot by spectators at the end of the Scottish Cup final May 10.

The battle, fought on the playing field after Celtic had won 1-0, ended in 210 arrests and many injuries to spectators and police. Fighting was so violent that mounted police had to make a baton charge.

Shutout brush in style

Ken Fox, Bob Swanson, Loren Smith and John Barnes all used the same brush — the whitewash one — to paint Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League victories Tuesday.

Swanson and Smith combined for a one-hitter as Port Alberni Athletics blanked Labatts 1-0 in one of three games at Central Park. The lone hit off the Alberni pitchers was a sixth-inning single by catcher Ross Barnett.

Swanson turned in a hitless performance before giving way to pinch-hitter Tony Powell in the fifth. Smith survived a sixth-inning threat and claimed the victory in relief.

Fox struck out nine, walked two and allowed only two hits — both by Craig Pickerell — to provide Victoria Athletics with 5-0 victory over Alberni.

Barnes outduelled Brian Rumsby as Tally-Ho nipped Juan de Fuca Builders 1-0 on Kevin Gilbert's solo homer.

On Monday, Tillicum Shoppers blanked McDonald Furniture 12-0 and Strathcona walloped Vidalin Construction 18-3 in Senior Women's League play.

Calgarian top bowler

The Calgary bowler, with a 249 average going into the competition, pocketed $1,385 after winning nine games in the match-play finals after qualifying sixth with a 271 average.

Top qualifier was Harold Zaporozan of Kelowna with a 280 average. But Zaporozan couldn't keep up the pace and finished 12th over-all.

Vantreight third

TRI-CITIES, Wash. — Victoria's Gerry Vantreight finished third in the main event of a Wasington Racing Association weekend program for super-modifieds and sprint cars.

Vantreight, third in WRA standings, captured the second heat.

Wilson lacks support

By ERNIE FEDORUK

One of these days, Dave Wilson may get around and sue his Victoria Budget teammates for non-support.

Wilson pitched a superb one-hitter, looked to be in command all the way but lost a 1-0 decision to the Camarillo Petrochem Kings and enabled the California team to emerge with a split of its four-game "Super Series" fastball exhibitions with the Budgets.

Budgets and the Kings swapped victories (1-0, 2-1) in the series opener Sunday at Royal Athletic Park, Victoria then breezed to a 7-1 victory in the opener of Monday's doubleheader before dropping their second 1-0 decision.

Wilson had a no-hitter going until Camarillo second baseman Bill Jochum singled with two out in the seventh inning to score Marty Rubinoff with the game's only run. Rubinoff coaxed a walk off Wilson with one out and then moved to second on a sacrifice by designated hitter Tom Chaparro.

The loss left Wilson with 5-6, won-lost record for the season.

"Dave has to be the best 5-6 pitcher in all of softball," said Budget manager Harvey Stevenson. "He could be 9-2 or 8-3 very easily but for some reason, the guys just don't come through for him."

"The guys" tagged winner Jack Newman and reliever Pete Hovestreydt for eight hits and a pair of walks but stranded seven runners. Two Camarillo double-plays helped cut down the number of Victoria base-runners and another, Reg Underwood, was called out for leaving first base too soon.

Southpaw Mark Smith, the first-game winner in relief of Rob Guenter, had support. Budgets belted out 13 hits, including a go-ahead, two-run homer by John Green.

There was support afield, too. Rightfielder Bob Burrows cut down Camarillo catcher Sam Triana with a throw that was undoubtedly the evening's highlight.

Triana's drive to Underwood took a wicked hop and eluded the Victoria centre fielder. Burrows, backing up, chased the ball to the outfield fence. Triana, making the turn at second, saw Burrows still chasing the ball and decided to stretch the hit into a triple.

Burrows' on-the-line throw of about 200 feet to third baseman John Green nailed Triana by about 10 feet.

"After a play like that," hummed general manager Jack Bell, "we could have chased everyone out of the park and sold tickets again."

Tickets should go at a good clip Saturday and Sunday when Budgets face the U.S. champions from Midland, Tex. St. Catharines, Ont., which dethroned Victoria as Canadian champions, follow the Texans into Royal Athletic Park next Tuesday.

Guenter and Green both have been picked up by St. Catharines for the World tournament at Tacoma next month. Both will play for the Ontario champions against their regular teammates.

Merchants beaten

Kennerd puts boot in Bomber offence

Times News Services

Trevor Kennerd was lightly regard by the Winnipeg coaching staff at the Canadian Football League's training camp, but the rookie from the University of Alberta has put a new kick into the Blue Bombers' offence.

Kennerd, who kicked four field goals — one a monstrous 57-yarder — in his CFL debut last week to lift the Bombers over Toronto Argonauts 20-16, kicked four more field goals Tuesday night in an upset of British Columbia Lions, 26-22.

In another exhibition game Tuesday, Ottawa Rough Riders drubbed Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-3 as all four clubs wound up their pre-season schedules.

The exhibition season ends tonight when Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger-Cats put their 3-0 marks on the line at Ivor Wynne Stadium and Toronto Argonauts visit Edmonton Eskimos.

Kennerd, a stocky 5-foot-6 and 180 pounds, was unheralded among the Winnipeg kickers in camp and seemed destined to play second-, even third-stringer behind Bob Cameron and Walt Passaglia in the bid for Bombers' kicking job, opened when the club dispatched Bernie Ruoff to Hamilton.

But once coach Ray Jauch got a chance to see the 24-year-old Kennerd, who failed in a tryout with Seattle Seahawks of the National Football League last year, against Argos, it was a solid bet he'd get another opportunity.

Kennerd responded once again under game conditions against the Lions and was successful on three-point tries from 29, 23, 39 and 49 yards and added two converts following touchdowns by Mark Bragagnolo (a four-yard run) and Passaglia (a 13-yard pass from quarterback Jim Krohn).

Winnipeg finished with a pre-season record of 2-2 while the Lions were 1-2-1.

At Lansdowne Park, Ottawa's Riders completely dominated their Western Conference namesakes and boasted a net offence of 448 yards to 227 for Saskatchewan.

Veteran Condredge Holloway and newcomer Steve Grant generated an Ottawa passing game that accounted for 394 yards. Holloway connected on 10 of 16 attempts for 193 yards, Grant six of 10 for 148.

Esquimalt takes peewee title

KAMLOOPS — Esquimalt Smith Cedar captured the British Columbia peewee girls' softball championship Tuesday with a 9-5 victory over North Delta.

Lara Dunn, who had a 2-1 tourney record, was the winning pitcher in the final and home runs were smashed by Cindy Kowalchuk, Joanne Oatman and Laureen Mitchell.

Oatman had a 2-0 record on the mound, including a one-hitter, while Debbie Cooper, the other Smith hurler, was 2-1.

Esquimalt lost twice to North Delta in earlier games, once in the round-robin section and once in the double-loss elimination playoffs.

Five teams remain in hunt

Hampton Evening Optimists and National Oddfellows are the latest to drop from the original starting field of 10, and that leaves Beacon Hill Mayfair Glass, Lakehill ANAF, Central Saanich, Oak Bay and Triangle Esslers as the survivors in the Greater Victoria Little League baseball winners' tournament.

Mayfairs eliminated Hampton 4-3 behind the pitching of Ben Peleshaty at Juan de Fuca Tuesday after Lakehill bounced Oddfellows, 11-8, Monday.

Oak Bay, which received a first-round bye, faces Central Saanich at 6:30 tonight at Juan de Fuca with the winner facing Beacon Hill Thursday. Another game in the single-knockout tournament will be played Friday and determine Saturday's championship finalist.

Legion squanders early lead

Esquimalt Legion got away flying against Richmond Roadrunners in a Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League game Tuesday afternoon at Esquimalt Sport Centre, but they were soon caught and brought back to earth.

The Roadrunners spotted Legion a 7-1 first-period lead and then came from behind for a 15-12 decision.

It was actually a one-goal game with Richmond scoring its final two goals into an empty net as Legion strove for the equalizer.

Legion's problems started with the start of the second period after taking that six-goal bulge in the first. And before the period was over the Runners had rammed in nine goals to cut the Legion edge to 11-10.

"We just couldn't seem to do anything right," commented general manager Bob Reid. "And it was our own fault. We had them on the ropes and let them off."

Richmond took 14 minutes in penalties to Legion's 12, but took better advantage of the short-handed situations by scoring three short-handed goals and three-power play markers.

Todd Lorenz paced the visitors with four goals. Jodie Twa and Art Hazel had a pair while singles went to Brent Gregg, Bob Johnston, Dave Stark, Geoff Michel, Jim Northey, Dave Brazzuol and Glen Jensen.

Jim Lightbody scored two goals and had five assists for Legion. Ed Van Dyke had two goals and three assists. Terry Jay and Gord Taylor also had a pair. Singles went to Mike Thomas, John Crowther and Vince Cullen.

Victory lifted the Roadrunners into a six-point lead over Legion who trail fourth-place Burnaby Cablevision by four points in their battle for a playoff position.

Richmond outshot Esquimalt 68 to 42, Legion goalkeepers Derek Croucher and Herb Isherwood being called on to make 53 saves. Ed Perovich stopped 30 for Richmond.

Cool fan reception for Beckenbauer

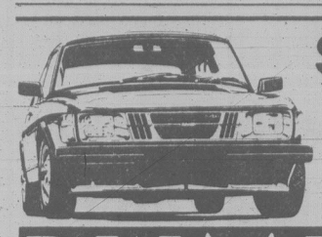

HAMBURG (Reuter) — Former West German team captain Franz Beckenbauer, signed by first division soccer club Hamburg as a replacement for English star Kevin Keegan, will not be received with open arms by all his team-mates.

Club sources said Beckenbauer, 34, lured back to Germany from New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League, will be Hamburg's highest-paid player ever with a yearly salary of $650,000, much of it from advertising contracts.

Hamburg is hoping that Beckenbauer will prove to be as big a crowd-puller as Keegan, who is returning to English soccer after three successful years with Hamburg.

But Beckenbauer, a Bavarian, was never a particular favorite with many northern Germans, who often interpreted his coolness on soccer fields as arrogance.

Banners waved by the crowd at Hamburg's last home match of the season in May said "Kaiser Franz -- no thank you." Yugoslav defender Ivan Buljan, asked recently what the team thought of its new team-mate, said frankly: "Not all the players are looking forward to Beckenbauer."

Alta. man charged in Osoyoos attack

OSOYOOS (CP) — An Alberta man has been charged with mischief in connection with an incident last Friday in which a camp of cherry pickers from Quebec was attacked by a group of five or six men with clubs and chains.

The attack, which led to one fruit picker being treated for head injuries and resulted in damage to transient workers' cars and tents, was the worst incident in a tense confrontation which has arisen between the French-Canadians and residents of this town of 2,100 persons.

The cherry pickers, most of whom are from Quebec, say they have been subject to harassment by townspeople motivated by racism. But local residents refused service in restaurants, taunted by youths and told to "get the hell back to Quebec."

But some townsfolk say the pickers steal, go skinny-dipping and disrupt life in general.

Dan Lowton, owner of a restaurant who has refused to serve the fruitpickers, denies he is prejudiced against the pickers but says they have "no sense of decency."

"It's not because they are French, but they're, you know, smelly and they look bad to our other customers.

"We pride ourselves on being a nice friendly town with a quiet atmosphere and these kids swim naked on the beach and do all kinds of wild things."

Frost says some of the fruitpickers have been caught stealing and caused problems for the restaurant owners.

RCMP charged Mark Kelly Revesz, 21, of Calgary in connection with last Friday's incident. He is to appear in Oliver District Court later this month.

Holiday traffic low on ferry system

Things were peaceful at B.C. Ferries terminals Tuesday and nobody had to wait more than an hour.

"Because Monday was a working day it wasn't like a long weekend," information officer Bill Bouchard said.

"It wasn't anything like the Thanksgiving Day weekend in October."

No cars were left on the dock at Tsawwassen after the 1 p.m. sailing. Traffic heading to Victoria was moderate in the afternoon and light in the evening.

Traffic was a little heavier at Swartz Bay but nobody had to wait more than one sailing, Bouchard said.

There were a few cars left behind on the 5 p.m. sailing from Swartz Bay but after that it tapered off quickly. There were only 50 vehicles aboard the last sailing at 10 p.m. There was a similar pattern between Nanaimo and Horseshoe Bay.

Bouchard said a significant number of people now are travelling on their summer holidays and are not jamming the terminals at the end of a holiday.

Group spokesman Bernie Friedman said, "If students really think about how fortunate they are to live in one of the greatest nations on earth, where freedom, prosperity, equality, and democracy are the rule and not just occasionally adhered to, they will have no qualms with Selective Service registration."

But David Landau, who heads the ACLU's draft protest program, noted that Carter had signed the registration bill almost six months after saying there was a national emergency.

"Not only have we not seen any national emergency develop, we have not been given any evidence to show that this registration is necessary," Landau said.

And Tom Palmer, a spokesman for the Student Libertarian Society, said his group would do "everything we can do make sure the program does not work."

In putting registration into effect, the president again condemned the "unwarranted and vicious invasion of Afghanistan by the Soviet Union" and hailed those who are resisting the Russian presence in the Moslem country.

Eskimos press land claims

GODTHAAB, Greenland (AP) — Eskimo leaders from Canada, Greenland and the United States made their first concerted bid early today to use the vast oil, gas and mineral resources of their Arctic homelands to press their national governments to make more political, financial and territorial concessions to them.

Leaders of the 100,000 Eskimos in the three countries wound up a four-day convention early today with traditional singing and demands for:

— A ban on oil, gas and mineral production in the Northwest Territories until they and the Canadian government agree on a settlement of their land claims. The Canadian Eskimos are scheduled to reopen negotiations with the Canadian government in August. They are seeking their own nation embracing about 75 per cent of the vast, largely unsettled Northwest Territories.

— A moratorium on new concessions and renegotiation of old ones, including uranium, in Greenland until the huge North Atlantic island's 41,000 Eskimos and the Danish government agree on control of Greenland's natural resources.

— A moratorium on offshore oil and gas concessions off the North Slope of Alaska until the U.S. government agrees that the Eskimos have title to the offshore area. The North Slope Eskimos already control billions of dollars of oil money in royalties or taxes from production there.

The pressure the Alaskan and Canadian Eskimos will be able to exert is questionable since they are tiny minorities. But Greenland's Eskimos are self-governing under the Danish crown

A Danish government outfit is scheduled to complete uranimum propsecting near Narsaq, in southern Greenland, this summer. The Narsaq deposit is estimated to be the largest in the nine countries of the European Economic Community outside France.

Servicemen treat civvies

Thousands of Victorians got a taste of service life on Canada Day when Armed Service Day was held at CFB Esquimalt.

Letdown for Miss Victoria as she's left on the shelf

By AL FORREST

Miss Victoria Linda Jensen says her stagecoach has turned into a pumpkin long before midnight.

Her life-long dream has been shattered.

"I was excited to represent Victoria at the Miss Canada pageant (in November) but nothing has happened since then. It is a terrible letdown."

She said all her life she dreamed of becoming Miss Victoria but it has turned out to be a hollow triumph.

"I think the city of Victoria, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and other organizations should be able to find some place for Miss Victoria in their activities, especially when they are promoting the tourist industry."

The 21-year-old secretary won the title in October, in a contest sponsored by VI*90. It was the first Miss Victoria pageant since 1974.

Before that the Victoria Jaycees selected Miss Victoria at their annual fair but stopped because of the expense.

VI*90 president John Ansell today said the station made two commitments to Jensen when she won the title — to pay all costs of sending her to Toronto for the Miss Canada pageant and to send her to the Miss PNE contest in August.

JENSEN
. . . hollow triumph

"Both commitments have been kept. We certainly agree that Victoria organizations could make more use of her services as long as they are willing to pay the expenses involved."

Jensen said previous winners of the Miss Victoria title described it to her as a year of activity and excitement.

She said she has found little of either during her term because of an apparent lack of interest in the Miss Victoria title.

She was surprised and annoyed on Victoria Day to find herself relegated to the middle of the parade in the same car with Miss Teen Victoria.

Meanwhile, the May Queen had the place of honor up front.

"There were no arrangements made to receive us and nobody seemed to care. We could have worn blue jeans for all the difference it made," Jensen said.

"I'm happy the May Queen got some attention but I don't think Miss Victoria should be completely ignored."

She said she is willing to travel anywhere to represent Victoria in any appropriate function.

She'll reign as Miss Victoria until the next contest in October.

"I would like to be given the chance to do the job.

"I don't know what's wrong with Victoria this year because I know previous winners of the title have been kept busy."

Acid load flips

A tanker truck carrying a load of sulphuric acid overturned Tuesday in the 4500-block Wilkinson Road.

However, only a small amount spilled before the truck was righted two hours after the 9:43 a.m. mishap.

Firemen hosed down the spill without incident.

Saanich police said the truck, owned by Pay N' Save gas company, carried 725 gallons of acid.

The driver, Gordon Henderson, 42, of 1040 McClure, told police he was heading south on Wilkinson when the load shifted as he rounded a curve causing the vehicle to veer into a ditch and turn over.

Henderson was treated for minor cuts and bruises.

About $2,000 damage was done to the truck.

Eight fired in janitor dispute

Eight janitors who Monday walked off their jobs cleaning B.C. government office buildings in Victoria have been fired in a dispute over overtime and working conditions.

"I told them to stay home, they're fired," Bill Nelson, manager of Amberley Building Maintenance Ltd., said today.

He was working with sponge and squeegee this morning at the Waddington Building on Broughton, one of Amberley's contracts, substituting for the departed staff.

"We've got contracts to fulfil and we'll do the work as best we can," he said.

He accused them of intimidating other Amberley staff. He said they got two more to join their cause and stay out, but they used heavy-handed tactics. Three of the eight "ganged up" on one woman and persuaded her to join, he said.

The workers handed Nelson a petition at 4:30 p.m. Monday, just as their shifts were about to start, claiming the company was refusing to pay overtime and was exploiting new immigrants on the staff.

In the parking lot confrontation outside Amberley's office at Superior and Menzies, Nelson listened for a few minutes before walking away.

He said then that the company does pay overtime, and he had just finished preparing pay slips which include it.

Rick Story, one of the eight who walked out, told reporters Monday the eight employees were going to complain to the Labor Relations Board and the B.C. Buildings Corporation about alleged infringements of labor laws, after getting nowhere with management.

His wife Kathy, another employee, said pay slips state overtime has been paid but the hours worked and the pay received work out only to straight time.

Chan Gurprasad said he had been working 18 hours and more some days, sometimes right around the clock, but hadn't been paid overtime. He was asked to sign a statement soon after he started 10 months ago agreeing to work for straight time only.

Gurprasad said he signed because he was afraid of losing his job. He has been in Canada only two years.

He was earning $5 an hour after 10 months employment and was initially hired at $3.75.

Story himself said when he was hired two months ago "he (Nelson) said 'I don't pay any overtime'."

"He starts 'em all off at $3.75 an hour. He'll give 'em another quarter depending on how desperate he is."

Amberley has about 40 employees and in the last two years has won a number of contracts from BCBC to clean government buildings in the city.

The company is owned by businessman Anthony Ellis, 2676 Queenswood, but he also refused to comment.

A spokesman for the industrial relations branch in the B.C. labor department said the general minimum wage order states that all employees must receive overtime pay at time and a half for work over their regular eight-hour shift.

After 11 hours is to be paid at double time. Where overtime is a regular occurrence, he also said the employer must apply for an overtime permit. An employee claiming overtime back pay could apply to the branch if he has trouble collecting.

Seniors aid seniors in skills project

By PAT DUFOUR

A new service for senior citizens has been launched at the Fernwood Community Centre at 1240 Gladstone.

Funded by a $20,000 federal government New Horizons grant, it is called Skills Exchange, a program in which senior citizens help other seniors.

Three of the directors — Leonora Powell, Al Cartier and Chester Stefanek — and acting co-ordinator Lisa Engelhardt — took time out recently to explain how the program will work.

Members of Skills Exchange will phone the office at 381-2312 to explain what work they need done. The office then finds a senior who has the skill to do the job. The phone will be manned daily from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

The person doing the job is then credited with the time he or she spent on it.

That credit can be used for anything he or she may want done by another senior with a skill.

"There is a real gold mine of experience among the seniors," Cartier said.

The Fernwood area was chosen as a headquarters because of the many retired trades people there.

There are 45,000 senior citizens in Greater Victoria, and Cartier and his fellow-workers see Skills Exchange expanding to include a large portion of them as the project gets into full swing.

Engelhardt, a business management student from the University of Peter borough, is employed until August through a federal government students summer employment program grant.

She said a counterpart of the program, started in Winnipeg a year ago, now averages 1,500 calls for work per month.

Engelhardt, who eventually will be succeeded by a permanent co-ordinator, has been distributing pamphlets explaining the program to various organizations.

Charter members will pay $2 to get the program well and truly launched.

The project already is beginning to gather momentum.

Director Cartier, for example, wanted a small garage built for his miniped. Fellow director Stefanek built it and in return had his income tax worked out by Cartier.

Director Powell, who has listed typing as one of the things she's prepared to do, said: "Everyone has some skill or need. Reading, for instance, or just someone to go and visit for a while.

"Right now, my carpets need cleaning. I haven't got a car and could use some transportation."

"I'm going to clean your carpets," Cartier promised.

In Skills Exchange every member is of equal value. A lawyer, for instance, helping another member draw up a will, is credited with the time spent on the job in the same way as any other member who contributes time to cut grass, mend a leaky tap or keep a lonely person company.

Engelhardt and the directors will hold an official opening at the centre on Thursday at 1:30 p.m. to give members a chance to become acquainted.

"One of the biggest benefits to come out of all this is the lasting friendships and relationships that can be made," Cartier said.

Revue shows some of past worth reliving

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Turning back the clock isn't always successful. Attempting to live over again experience that was enjoyed two or three decades past can be disillusioning.

But there are exceptions. Chalk up Blue Champagne, now at the McPherson Playhouse, as one.

Blue Champagne not only recalls, or introduces you to a joyous phenomenon of the past, but makes it even better than it was.

For those of us who were out of rompers in the Big Band era, from the late 30s to the mid 40s, there was magic in the live radio broadcasts from the ballrooms and rooftop lounges of the continent.

The music swung and soared, creating the release from tension, the fantasy aura that was so necessary in that difficult time.

A gifted Canadian, Ken John Grant, has put together and directed Blue Champagne and five supremely talented Canadian artists present it in a manner that can be said to out-champagne champagne in sparkle, headiness and a sense of celebration.

This revue, a high-flying triumph in all the country's major cities, has never been excelled in my memory by any other show of its type.

It is consistent in style with a setting that is all silvery-blue, delicately art deco and jewel-lighted. The production technique is quick, nimble and sleek; it is beautifully costumed, sung, danced and played throughout its lively length.

The visual pleasure provided by the setting is complemented by three attractive people — Jayne Lewis, Deirdre Van Winkle and Bill Cole. Their dancing and movement is buoyant and graceful and while the attractive solo voices are not of uniform quality, the ensemble singing is outstanding because the singers have worked conscientiously at blend and balance.

The format is a live NBC broadcast complete with occasional announcements and news flashes, and charmingly sung long-gone but not forgotten 30-second commercials — 'Call for Phillip Morris,' Campbell's Soups, Chiquita Bananas and so forth.

More than 65 songs of the era are performed. They include popular classics by Kurt Weill, Hoagy Carmichael, Duke Ellington, Glenn Miller, Irving Berlin, Jerome Kern, Cole Porter and many others.

Every song is done justice to — especially by Lewis and Van Winkle — but nothing is drawn out to a possible ho-hum. Changes are lightning swift, the few props used appear and disappear with a prestidigitator magic.

These beautiful people doing beautiful things with nostalgia — including pianist Don Horsburgh and acoustical bassist Timothy Stacey — prove that some of the past is well worth reliving or introducing as a new experience.

They'll be here until July 12. Don't miss it.

Fire damages Rattenbury's

About $5,000 damage was done in a Monday night fire at Rattenbury's restaurant in the Crystal Garden at 713 Douglas.

Victoria deputy chief Fred Severson said the fire, reported at 8:39 p.m., was confined to the restaurant's second-floor office and was caused when a gooseneck lamp left on fell on a desk and ignited some papers.

Severson said about $3,600 damage was done to contents and $2,000 to the building.

Sing-song, celebrations mark nation's birthday

By ALISON HARE

Thousands of people swarmed to Parliament Hill for the nation's 113th birthday bash Tuesday as Canadians from coast to coast celebrated the Dominion Day holiday with bonfires, citizenship ceremonies, sporting events, songs, parades and concerts.

Because of a reduced budget, organizers of the national festivities in Ottawa — dampened by ominous clouds and thunder rumblings — had said they were attempting to turn the event back to the people as a giant sing-song.

And as it turned out the crowd, keyed up for a good display of fireworks, was in a fine mood for being divided into groups to compete for the distinction of being the loudest in song.

The Travellers, a group specializing in nationalist songs such as This Land is Your Land, were the first to egg the thousands into song and onto their feet.

Even the dignitaries and others seated in a cordoned-off ringside area got up and into the swing of things, although self-consciously. The exception was Gov.-Gen. Edward Schreyer, who remained in his chair despite a prod from his wife, Lily.

But he showed his enthusiasm later after country singer Wayne Rostad sang about a liquor-crazed man pursuing a grizzly bear through area mountains and into the kitchens of the Governor-General's official residence.

Schreyer nipped backstage to pick up a Rostad record while rock singer Robert Paquette took the platform.

The two-hour $500,000 show also featured the Neighborhood Kids, the bluegrass band Cody and a group of Quebec folk dancers and fiddlers called LaTurlutaine.

Organizers of the nationwide celebrations had to work with a $2-million budget, slashed from $3.8 million the year before. But festivities like the Ottawa show got added impetus from the breaking in of O Canada as the country's official anthem.

A colorful proclamation ceremony was held on Parliament Hill at noon as Canadians from coast to coast were supposed to drop whatever they were doing to sing the anthem.

And people at local events in numerous cities did just that.

Radio stations, airlines, train stations played the anthem to passengers or listeners. In Halifax, a group gathered by the harbor to sing O Canada.

However, a Canadian Coast Guard official said the anthem wasn't broadcast over marine radio frequencies as previously planned.

"We have ships galore to look after today and we don't have time to listen to anthems."

And in Toronto, CBC radio went right into its noon newscast, drawing fire later for its actions in a Globe and Mail editorial.

Daytime activities in Toronto were low-key but the entertainment centres along the waterfront — notably Ontario Place and Harborfront — organized what they billed as their biggest and best fireworks displays.

The provincial government threw its annual party at Queen's Park, attended by the Muppets' Miss Piggy in her wedding regalia.

In Montreal, there was a five-kilometre parade, street-dancing, bonfires, fireworks and a citizenship ceremony but the crowds were by no means large.

Bartenders at downtown water holes blamed the lack of revellers on last week's celebration of St. Jean Baptiste Day, the national holiday of French-Canadians. "Most people can't afford two four-day parties," said one.

In the Maritimes, the activities ranged from oxen pulling contests to fiddling concerts to ecumenical church services.

Outlook for shah still dim

CAIRO (AP) — Although the deposed shah of Iran has improved and is in satisfactory condition following surgery to remove fluid from his lungs, the resumption of treatment for his cancer must be delayed and "the long-term outlook is not encouraging," one of his doctors reported.

The doctor, who declined use of his name, said the post-surgery prognosis for Mohammad Reza Pahlavi was favorable, but chemotherapy to try to keep his lymphatic cancer in check could not resume "for a long time," until he regained strength from the operation Monday.

He said cancer patients who undergo such surgery require "at least 15 days" of recuperation.

The doctor said the two litres of fluids removed by the surgeons resulted from an abdominal abscess in the sub-diaphragm region and considerably weakened the deposed monarch.

Meanwhile, in Iran, a 24-hour strike against Iranian hospitals began today, and first reports indicated it was widely supported by junior doctors.

The strike, in defiance of a threat by the health ministry to fire and prosecute the ringleaders, is to protest the execution last week of Dr. Ismail Narimisa in Ahwaz, southwest Iran.

Langwood workshop to stay

Langwood Workshop will remain open in spite of earlier threats by its board to close it June 30 if the human resources ministry didn't restructure its method of allocating funds.

Ralph Vipond, executive director of the Capital Region Association for the Mentally Handicapped, said today the workshop will continue to operate because the ministry has promised to develop a new program to assist the people who now attend the workshop.

Langwood is designed to provide basic training to mentally handicapped people.

Vipond said the ministry has suggested creation of a new program in conjunction with the Saint Vincent De Paul Society to replace the workshop.

Vipond says if the program is organized and provides the life-skills training promised, the CRAMH won't object.

But the CRAMH does have a plan for a new building which includes space for a workshop to be used by the people now attending Langwood.

Vernon shops swept by fire

VERNON (CP) — Four west end stores were heavily damaged by fire here early today.

The fire burst through the roof of Winman's Home Furnishings Ltd. about 5:30 a.m. No one was injured.

Smoke and water damage was considerable, said fire authorities. Three adjoining businesses were damaged by smoke.

Cause of the fire was not known, but authorities said it may have been smouldering for 24 hours.

Fisherman survives shark attack ordeal

SHELBURNE, N.S. (CP) — A Nova Scotia fisherman thinks "the fella up there" must have smiled on him after he survived a shark attack 18 hours from shore last Friday.

Sidney Hallett, 34, a crew member of the swordfish vessel Lady Anne III of Shelburne, was bitten by a six-foot, 150-pound blue shark after the fish became entangled in the vessel's trawl.

"It was so quick I can hardly remember the bite," he said later in an interview.

The shark tore through Hallett's oil skins and ripped the flesh and muscle from his right forearm.

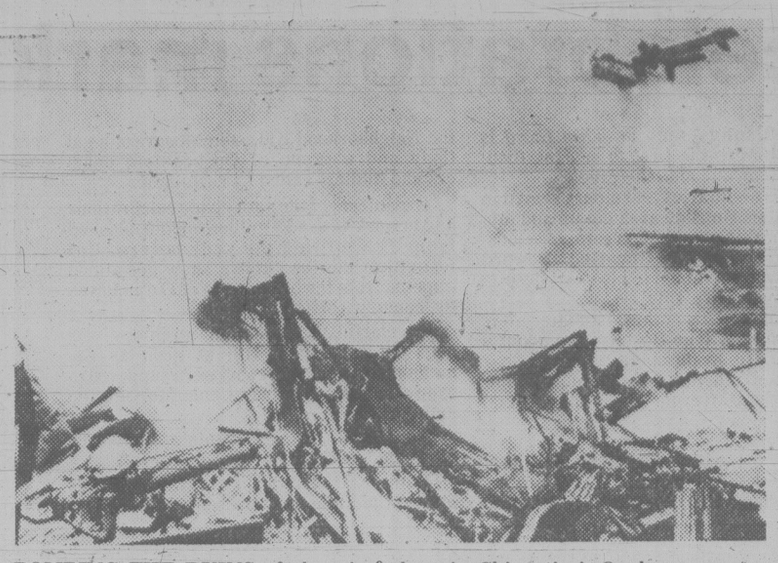

The crew spotted the shark entangled in the trawl after they started to pull it from the water. Hallett, of East Green Harbour grabbed a swordfish gaff and sank it into the tail of the shark.

The other crewmen pulled the trawl onboard and began to untangle the shark from the trawl line.

The fish then flipped sideways and grabbed Hallett's arm.

In a life-saving move, the crew applied two tourniquets to his arm to stop the bleeding.

But Hallett says the pain was unbearable even though he took eight pain-killing tablets normally prescribed for migraine headaches.

Audience gets a bang out of Tchaikovsky

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The show must go on — despite injuries — says the man who was holding the baton when Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture had an unusually explosive finale Monday night.

Forty-six people attending an outdoor concert received minor injuries when explosive charges, a regular prop for the masterpiece's climax, misfired, spraying the audience with pieces of wire and cardboard.

The injured were taken to two city hospitals and released after treatment for cuts and bruises.

But Laszlo Gati, conductor of the Windsor Symphony, said Tuesday the injuries should not prevent explosives from being used in the show.

"We have never had such a great crowd," said Gati, former conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra. He estimated 150,000 were within listening distance of the performance. The symphony played along the Detroit River in downtown Windsor as part of the International Freedom Festival, celebrated annually in Windsor and Detroit.

Gati blamed the crowd for creating its own problems.

"I warned the audience five or six times not to stand close to the enclosure (a snow fence surrounding the charges)," he said. "The problem was simply that people were too close, or maybe the enclosure was too small.

The cause of the accident was still unknown a day after it happened.

Cousteau in Canada

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — Jacques Cousteau has joined the crew of the Calypso here to begin a filmed expedition examining the conflict between civilization and the ecology in waters from offshore Newfoundland to the Great Lakes.

The 70-year-old French oceanographer said Monday the expedition will look at what has happened to aquatic life since North America was penetrated by European settlers.

Woman struck on train trestle

OTTAWA (CP) — A woman killed Tuesday by a train when she was trapped with two other Canadian Forces members on a narrow railway trestle while portaging in Algonquin Park, was identified today as Cpl. Edith Aileen Knechtel, 29, of Vancouver.

The defence department also said her two male companions, Lt. Mike Maxwell, 24 of Regina, and Master Cpl. Robert McClennan, 39 of Peterborough, Ont., are in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Police said the victims — on a wilderness canoe expedition in Algonquin Park about 150 kilometres northwest of Ottawa — were walking across the trestle and got too far before they saw an oncoming Canadian National Railways train.

Embassy staff honored

OTTAWA (CP) — Former ambassador Ken Taylor and seven other Canadians involved in the sheltering and evacuation of six American diplomats in Iran last January are to receive special honors.

Taylor and four other members of the external affairs department were appointed to the Order of Canada. Three members of the armed forces who had been stationed in the Canadian embassy were appointed to the Order of Military Merit.

Named to the Order of Canada along with the former ambassador were Miss Laverna Dollimore, secretary to Taylor: Roger-Lucy, first secretary and consul; Miss Mary Flaherty, communications; and John V. Sheardown, first secretary of immigration.

Named to the Order of Military Merit were Master Corporal George Edward Brian, communications: Sgt. James Gordon Edward, security guard, and Sgt. Joseph Richard Noel Claude Gauthier, in charge of security at the embassy.

Writer C.P. Snow dies

LONDON (AP) — C. P. Snow, a writer, physicist and government official who wrote the 11 Strangers and Brothers novels about 20th-century British academic and government life, is dead at the age of 74.

Snow, who was made a life peer in 1964 and took the name of Lord Snow of Leicester, died Tuesday at his home in London's Chelsea district.

He is survived his wife, novelist Pamela Hansford Johnson, whom he married in 1950, and their son, Philip, 28.

His last book, A Coat of Varnish, was published last year. Like his first, Death Under Sail, published in 1932, it was a murder mystery.

In between, Snow wrote 23 other books of fiction and non-fiction, five plays and many articles. He wrote and lectured on what he considered the urgent need to bridge the gaps between the arts and science and the industrial and developing worlds.

Snow turned away from science after the success of his second novel, The Search, in 1934 and published the first volume in what became the Strangers and Brothers series in 1940. His literary career was interrupted by government service during the Second World War, but he returned to his fictional hero, Lewis Eliot, and his friends and associates.

Snow was born Oct. 15, 1905, in the industrial town of Leicester. His father was a clerk in a shoe factory and a talented musician who became a Fellow of the Royal College of Organists.

Snow attended the local grammar school and was its first pupil to go on to a university, attending Leicester University College on scholarships. He graduated with honors in chemistry in 1927 and in physics from Cambridge in 1930.

He became a Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, where he worked for a decade, began publishing scientific papers and preparing for what he later called "my ultimate vocation — writing."

Snow served as technical director to the labor ministry from 1940 to 1944 and as civil service commissioner between 1945 and 1960. In 1964, Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson appointed him parliamentary secretary to the minister of technology, the No. 2 post in the ministry, and installed him in the House of Lords. He retired from government service two years later.

China action seen unlikely

HONG KONG (AP) — Canadian External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan said today that he does not believe China will take any immediate action against Vietnam for its recent military incursion into Thailand.

MacGuigan also said he hopes the wear and tear on Vietnam's economy because of the involvement in Cambodia will force Hanoi to come to the conference table.

He said his government will continue to support the ousted Cambodian government of Pol Pot.

Although Canada does not condone the policies of the former regime, MacGuigan said the Khmer Rouge guerrillas are still the only forces capable of checking the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia.

MacGuigan said leaders of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations agreed that there should be a more democratic government in Cambodia following the overthrow of the current Hanoi-backed regime.

He said one possibility is the emergence of a third force around the former Cambodian head of state, Prince Norodoum Sihanouk.

MacGuigan met earlier with ASEAN foreign ministers at Kuala Lumpur.

He said the ASEAN ministers were assured by the support given to their countries by him and U.S. State Secretary Edmund Muskie.

MacGuigan ruled out the possibility of Canadian military assistance to Thailand.

He also said the Canadian government does not plan to take any diplomatic initiative on the Cambodian crisis.

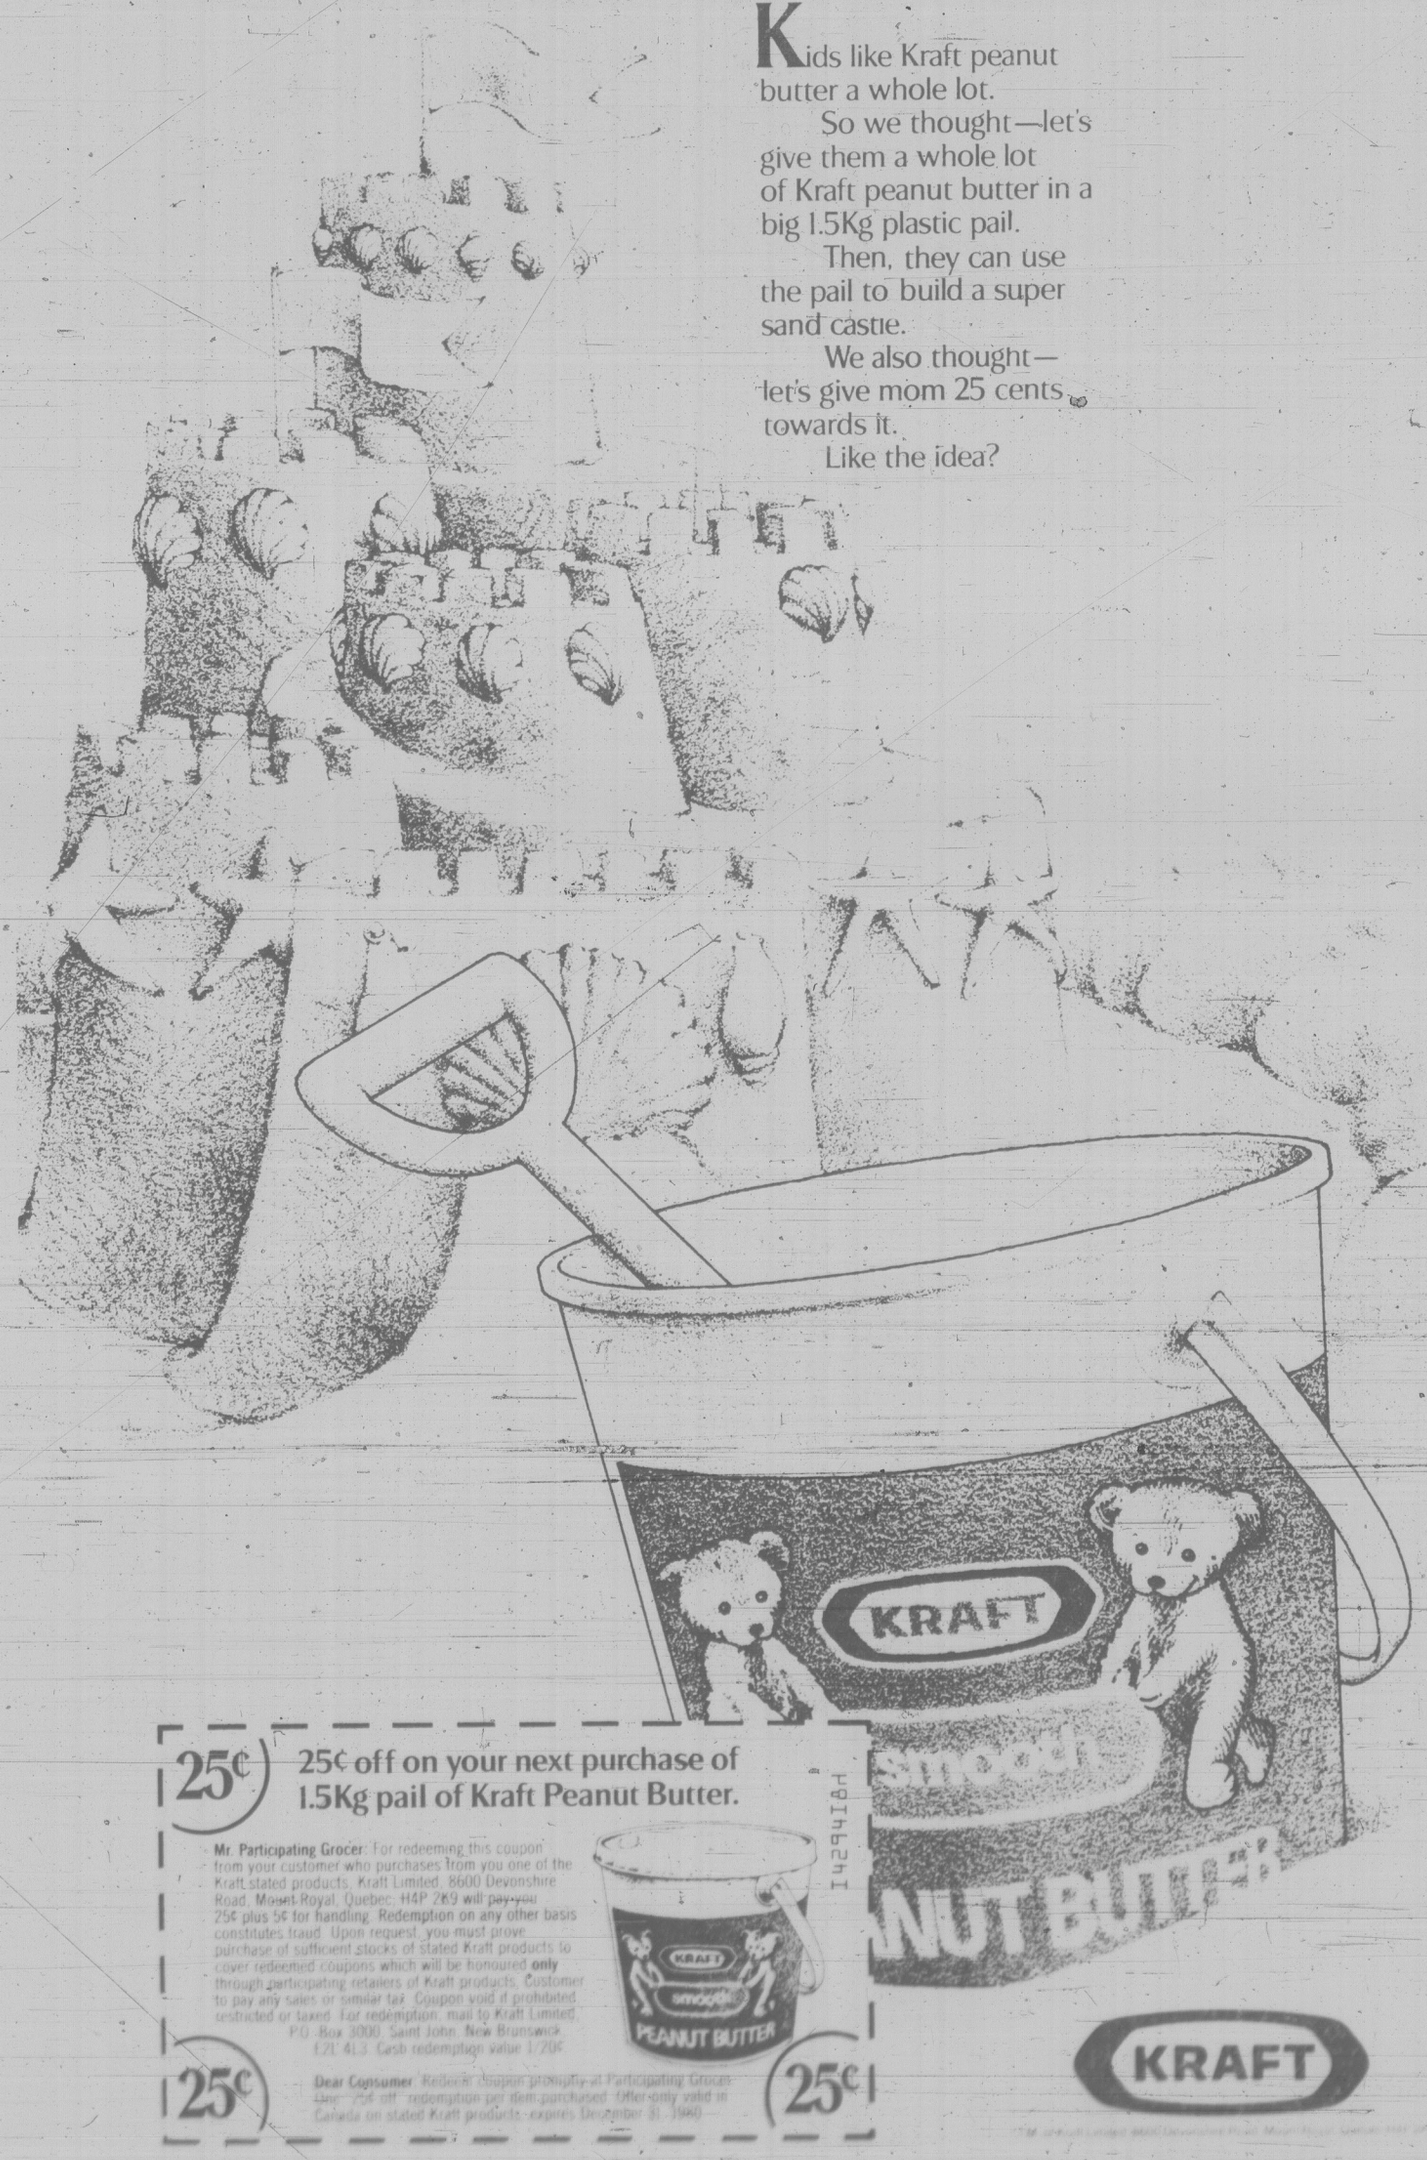

He said it was agreed that any initiative should come from the ASEAN leaders themselves.

The Canadian external affairs minister said that there is no effective way Ottawa can provide aid to the Cambodian refugees because the Vietnamese-led forces have sealed off most of the Thai-Cambodia frontier.

He said most of the relief assistance going to Cambodia is getting into the hands of the Vietnamese and Phnom Penh forces.

Meanwhile, in a token show of U.S. support, President Carter has ordered an immediate airlift of 1,000 rifles, some artillery and anti-tank guns to the Thai army.

Schmidt seeks N-curb

BONN (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, home from his Kremlin summit with apparently nothing to show on Afghanistan, called today for talks between the United States and the Soviet Union on limiting medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

He dispatched his foreign minister, Hans Dietrich Genscher, to Paris and Washington to brief officials on his meeting with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, the first East-West Moscow summit since the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan last December.

A source in the foreign ministry said Genscher will speak with President Carter about several questions the U.S. leader had asked Schmidt to include in his discussions.

"We are awaiting a reaction," said the source.

On his way to Washington, Genscher stopped in Paris and met French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet. The two talked for nearly an hour, foreign ministry officials said.

Schmidt and Genscher returned to Bonn late Tuesday, their departure delayed several hours by a surprise meeting with Soviet Defence Minister Dmitri Ustinov.

Schmidt presented a "timetable" calling for the withdrawal of all Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

After the talks, Schmidt said he had "reason to believe" that the Russians would be willing to begin discussions on the missiles but also indicated he had received no assurances they would continue troop pullbacks in Afghanistan.

Slum samba greets Pope

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Pope John Paul II got a samba welcome today to a hillside slum overlooking Ipanema Beach where he assured the poor the Roman Catholic Church is on their side.

He also warned Brazil's government the church will be "threatening" and "quite severe" if necessary to protect the poor against exploitation.

Thousands of people, some with banners that said "We are drinking sewer water" and "We are the blessed of God and the rejects of society," lined the pope's beachfront route to the Favela Vidigal slum.

Members of a samba school beat drums and danced as the pope rode by in his "popemobile" and residents in Vidigal performed a samba they wrote in his honor.

Despite the music, the pope's message was a serious one and he began by recalling the words of Jesus Christ in the Sermon on the Mount.

"Blessed are poor in spirit for theirs is the kingdom of heaven," John Paul said.

He then spoke of the church's role in bringing about a narrowing of the gap between rich and poor.

"The only struggle, the only battle which the church will serve is that noble struggle for truth and for justice and the battle for the true good," he said.

"On this road, the church fights with the word of the Lord, not ceasing to encourage, but also not sparing warnings, at times quite severe, as Christ has done.

"Many times even threatening and showing the results of falsity and of evil," he said.

S.A. reveals details of raid

ONDANGWA, Namibia (Reuter) — South African soldiers nearly destroyed the military structure of the South-West Africa People's Organization in southern Angola during a recent strike against guerrilla bases, a military spokesman said.

The forces killed more than 300 guerrillas and captured more than 250 tons of Soviet or East European military equipment during the operation and flew it back across the border to this forward military base, he said.

The raid was widely condemned at the United Nations, where the Security Council, at the request of Angola, met to discuss it and later passed a resolution censuring South Africa.

Meanwhile, in Johannesburg, 35 prominent South Africa religious leaders were found guilty Tuesday of contravening the country's riotous assemblies act, and three elected to go to jail for 50 days rather than pay a fine.

A Johannesburg magistrate found the 35 guilty of attending an illegal gathering and disturbing the traffic. He fined them $70, with the alternative of 50 days in jail.

All the accused, including leading black activist Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu, pleaded not guilty to the first charge, but guilty to the second.

60 whales ground, die

Some of the black sea mammals, more than seven metres long, had calves with them.

Local residents and vacationers at Treachery Head beach tried to tow some of the smaller whales back out to sea, but the mammals immediately swam back.

Two members of a St. Louis ambulance crew have been suspended for two weeks without pay because they stopped for a pizza while transporting a patient on an emergency run. City health officials would not identify the two but confirmed the incident happened.

Pierre Berton and Bruno Gerussi became family when daughter, Patsy Berton, married son, Ricky Gerussi, at the Berton home in Kleinburg, Ont.

In Hull, Quebec a courtroom crowd giggled as 20-year-old Michel Martin was fined $5 for possession of hashish by a judge who did not know if "the darned stuff is decriminalized yet." Judge Louis Robichaud gave Martin 30 days to pay the fine after he had to confer with Crown lawyers to find out whether possession of the restricted drug is still a criminal offence and "just how much one-half gram of this hashish" was. "I don't know anything about the stuff, is that a little, or a lot, or what?" asked the judge.

Mimic Rich Little recently answered the phone at his home and decided some wise guy was trying to dose him with his own medicine. Said he, interrupting the caller, "Whoever you are, you're doing a great impression of Gerald Ford. You're really good at it." Said the caller, "I should be good at it — I've been doing it for more than 50 years." Okay — but can Gerald Ford do Rich Little?

The cover of Billy Joel's latest album, Glass Houses, shows the rock idol about to throw a stone at a glass house. What might that have to do with the Dakota, the fashionable old co-operative apartment house on Central Park West? Well, the Dakota is not made of glass, but the sensibilities of the members of its board of directors are apparently just as fragile, for the board has shattered Joel's hopes of moving into the landmark building.

When publisher Hugh Hefner handed out Playboy magazine's freedom of expression awards, he got an angry "no thanks!" from excommunicated Mormon Sona Johnson who would not accept the $3,000 because of "the way Playboy depicts women and the non-loving, non-committed relationships it condones."

Dear Abby:

Six months ago I married a beautiful woman. She had the kind of beauty that most men can only dream about. She was cuddly and loving before we were married and until about a month after; then Bobby, her nine-year-old son, took over.

She prepares only Bobby's favorite food (mainly hamburgers) and never asks me what I want. When I suggest something, I'm told, "We aren't used to eating that"!

She speaks of her rights and Bobby's rights. Never mine. She buys him any toy he wants. He already has more than 100 m cartons and tires of them quickly.

She allows Bobby to hold and touch her, but I am told it's not "proper" for a husband and wife to show physical affection in front of children. She's 43, I'm 46, but a nine-year-old rules our house. We have to watch his favorite TV shows, and when we eat out, we go where Bobby wants to go.

Abby, I was willing to accept her son; but until he was seven, he slept with her.

I'm not even allowed to correct him. If I try, she jumps all over me, so I just pay their bills and get nothing out of our marriage. What is your advice?

Outsider

Dear Outsider:

Tell your bride that you are dissatisfied with your marriage and will need her co-operation (and Bobby's) to improve it. Family counselling, involving all members of the family, will be required. If she refuses to co-operate, you can either dissolve the marriage or hang around and be used.

Dear Abby:

About three weeks ago I met a real neat kid. We hit it off swell together. He asked me for my telephone number and I gave it to him.

The next day he called and we made a date for that Friday night. He never showed up and never called. Yesterday I bumped into him by accident, and he said he was sorry about what happened last Friday, but something unexpected came up and he couldn't make it.

He asked if he could see me that night and I said yes. Well, he didn't show up and didn't call. Next Saturday night my girlfriend is having a party, and she told me to bring my own guy. Do you think I should give this kid another chance? I still like him.

Holes in my Head

Dear Holes:

If you do, you should borrow the rocks in his head to fill up the holes in yours.

Dear Abby:

Would you care to speculate on why a man would lose three wedding rings in the first four years of his marriage?

His Wife

Dear Wife:

He either consciously or unconsciously doesn't want to a) be married, b) look married, c) feel married. Or a combination of all three.

'Zee best food in zee world'

By WAYNE SLATER

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — It's not exactly what you expect from a cinderblock tavern next to a factory in a neighborhood gone to seed: Escargot. Coq au vin. Blanquette de veau a l'ancienne.

But there it is — draft beer in the front room, truffles in the back. Welcome to Frenchy's Tap, the haute spot in catfish country.

"When I said I wanted to open a French restaurant here in a bar, my family was opposed," said Henri (Frenchy) DuCamp, the moustachioed proprietor who did it anyway.

After a year of tending bar, he cleared out the back room, painted the walls, hung travel posters and constructed a huge cardboard Eiffel Tower where the pool table used to be.

And if the ambience falls short of the Ritz in Paris, if the clack of billiard balls and the honky-tonk music from the front intrude a little, no one seems to care.

It is the food they go to Frenchy's for, not the atmosphere.

"I could pitch a tent in the boondocks and put up a picnic bench and people would come to eat my food," said Frenchy, 57. "Those people who want narrow lights and mirrors and a dozen guys dressed up like penguins, I don't want them."

There are no menus at Frenchy's.

It's $15 a person, excluding wine. An interested diner simply calls in advance, and Frenchy, prone to T-shirts by day and formal chef's wear by night, will stop pouring beer for the day shift to read the menu in a loud French accent over the wail from the juke box.

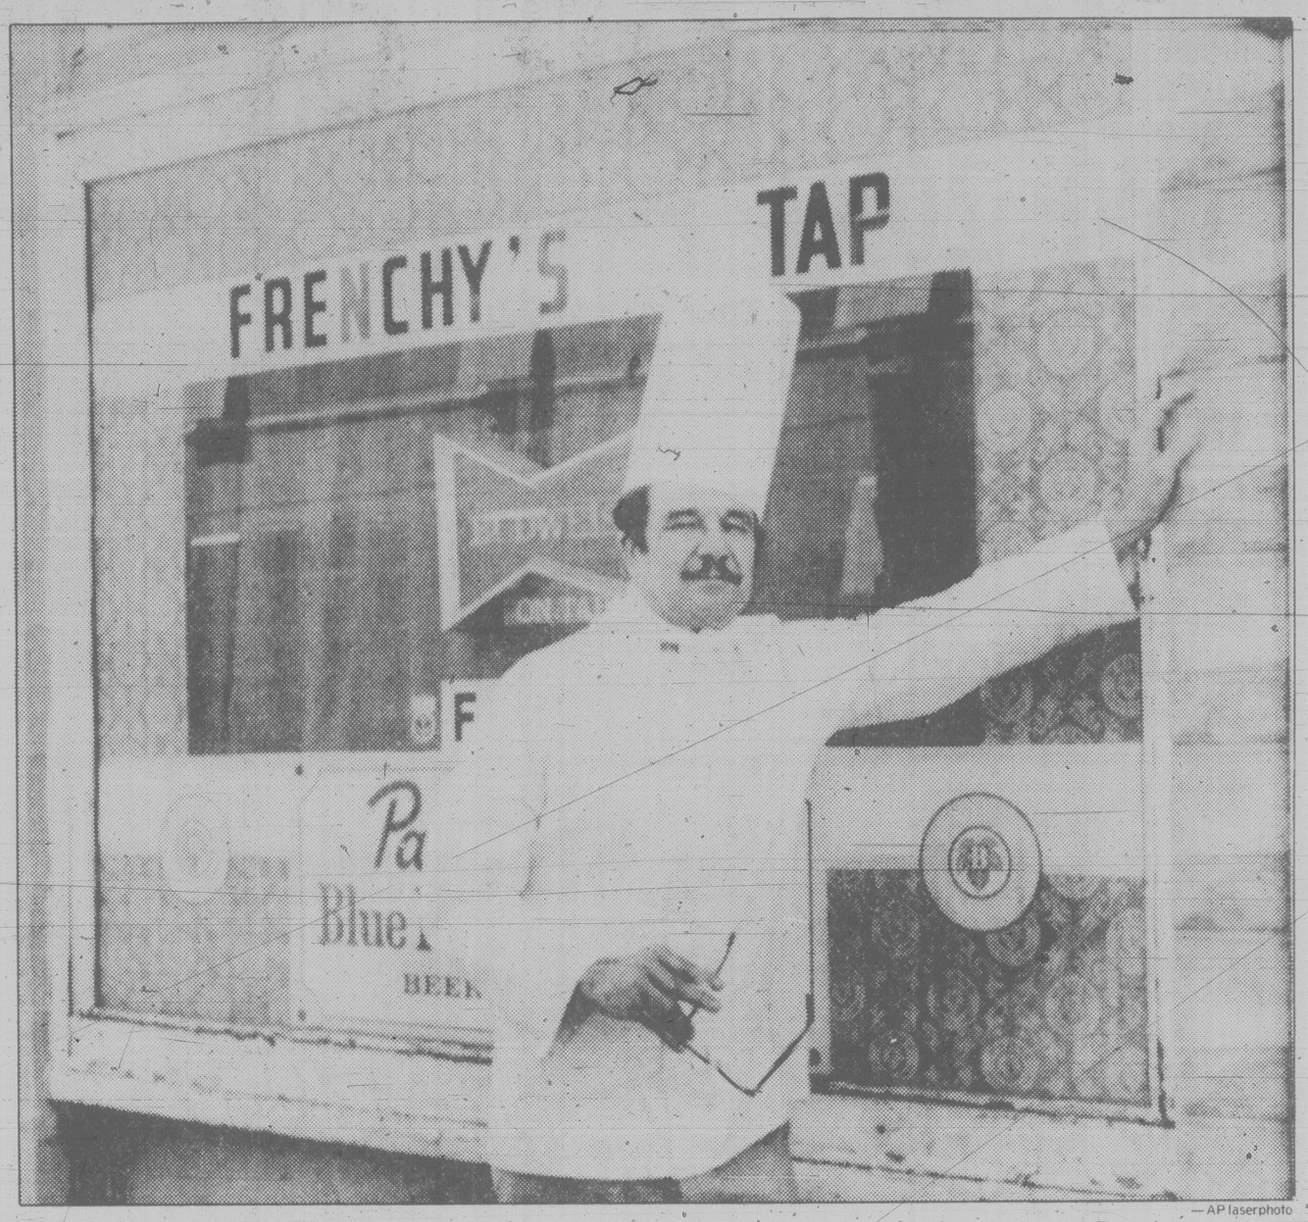

"French onion soup, escargot, Coquille St. Jacques and scallops, and you may select from beef bourguignon, which is excellent."

It is a long way from Nice, where Henri was born, and from French Morocco, where he learned French cuisine at his uncle's knee.

He ran a restaurant there for a while, and in Hollywood, and even a truckstop at Galesburg, Ill., where it was "hamburgers and french fries on Formica tables by day and white napkins, tablecloths and flowers by night."

He travelled to Peoria to be near his daughter, bought Fonzie's Bar and Grill, christened it Frenchy's Tap and after a few months of serving steak tartare over the bar, opened the backroom.

He does not advertise. The name of the restaurant does not appear outside, only a rather puzzling sign on the side of the building: "Zee Best Food in Zee World."

Beef always at barrel bottom

When the food budget is scraping bottom or there isn't much time to prepare a meal, it's ground beef to the rescue every time.

As little as one-half pound of ground beef can save a cook's reputation when four servings of a hurry-up entree are needed. Although it's increasingly expensive, ground beef is remarkably stretchable and combines well with most pantry staples. In particular, canned condensed soups help to stretch ground beef with style.

Condensed soup makes complicated recipes a possiblity in minutes by providing a sauce or a blending of flavours that would take an extra hour or two of preparation. Its dependability assures success every time, which is the kind of insurance any cook appreciates.

As an example of what can e done with ground beef and canned condensed soup, try Carne De Vaca Chili. It takes only about 15 minutes to make and yields four servings of a top of the stove dish that is good and hearty. To ground beef browned with onion are added beef soup, cooked elbow marcaroni, canned tomatoes and chili powder. The combination is spicily hot and satisfying.

For a patio lunch or dinner, here's a recipe that serves six hot Beefy Barbecu Buns. In this quick and easy top of the stove meal, the ground beef is browned with onion and green pepper. Condensed bean with bacon soup, barbecue sauce and brown sugar contribute to the enticing aroma of the western soup-burgers served on hamburger buns.

Ground beef stretchers made with soup are easy to create with what's on hand and can easily be adapted to individual tastes and preferences.

CARNE DE VAGA CHILI
(Serves 4)

- 250 g (½ pound) ground beef
- 125 ml (½ cup) chopped onion
- 1 can 284 ml (10 ounces) condensed beef soup
- 500 ml (2 cups) cooked elbow marcaroni
- 1 can 454 g (about 16 ounces) tomatoes, cup up
- 15 ml (1 tablespoon) chili powder

In frying pan, brown beef and cook onion until tender (use shortening if necessary). Stir to separate meat; pour off fat. Add remaining ingredients; cook over low heat 10 minutes. Stir occasionally.

BEEFY BARBECUE BUNS
(6 sandwiches)

- 500 g (1 pound) ground beef
- 125 ml (½ cup) chopped onion
- 50 ml (¼ cup) chopped green pepper
- 1 can 284 ml (10 ounces) condensed bean with bacon soup
- 125 ml (½ cup) barbecue sauce
- 75 ml (⅓ cup) water
- 15 ml (1 tablespoon) brown sugar dash pepper
- 6 hamburger buns, split and toasted

In frying pan, brown beef and cook onion and green pepper until tender (use shortening if necessary). Stir to separate meat; pour off fat. Stir in remaining ingredients. Heat; stir occasionally. Serve on buns.

Laser medicine is progressing rapidly

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

A new and excellent refinement of the use of the laser beam now promises a great deal of hope. Dr. John Dixon, of the University of Utah, has modified the standard laser beam and is now using it for the removal of early cancers of the esophagus and stomach and for the control of bleeding from the stomach and upper intestinal tract.

It is also being used to remove some types of "port wine stains" of the skin and tattoos.

The value of the refined laser beam is that it can accomplish its objective without damaging the surrounding or underlying tissue.

At the University Medical Centre at Utah, surgeons are beginning to operate on the liver and the spleen with the laser "knife." The results are spectacular. Prior to its use, profuse bleeding had made such operations extremely hazardous.

Dixon said, "Laser surgery will be conducted in emergency rooms, intensive care units, and even in outpatient clinics, just as soon as reliable, portable units are available."

This is an extension of the excellent results that have been obtained with the laser beam in detachments of the retina. The preservation of sight has been a testimonial to the advances in laser technology.

Dear Doctor:

An interesting study has shown some danger in the overuse of alcohol and aspirin taken at the same time. It has long been established that aspirin can cause congestion of the lining of the stomach, gastritis and ulcers of the stomach. Bleeding is often associated with the indiscriminate use of aspirin among those people who have any ulcer tendency. It is also known that alcohol can damage the delicate lining of the stomach and the duodenum of the small intestine.

Now, repeated studies in experimental animals definitely show that the combination of aspirin and alcohol is particularly dangerous to anyone who has an incipient ulcer.

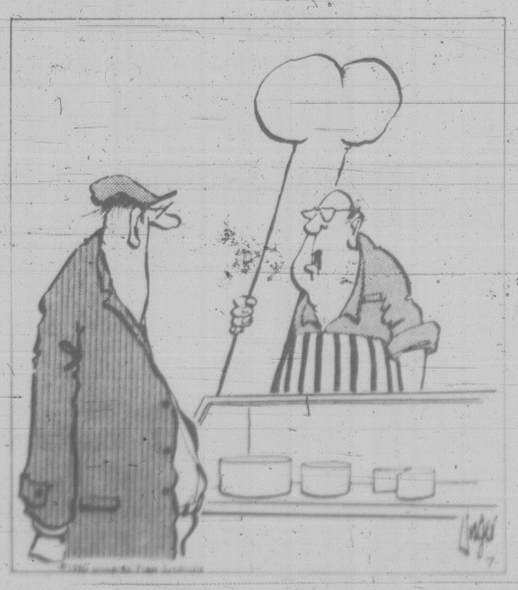

Dear Doctor:

It was reported recently that the black tree fungus may be one of the reasons why there is so much less heart disease in China than there is in America.

Dr. Dale E. Hammerschmidt, of the University of Minnesota Medical School, found that this tasty, rubbery mushroom, so commonly used in Chinese cooking, may reduce clotting of the blood.

This preliminary observation will now be followed by experimental animal and human studies to find out if the onset and progression of arteriosclerosis can be markedly minimized by its use.

Lamb good on summer barbecue and budget

Barbecues add so much to spring and summer enjoyment — but often too much to the food budget. If you're looking for ways to economize and cook outdoors, too, look to lamb.

Besides being an imaginative change of pace, lamb is a good buy. In addition lamb is so versatile that it can be prepared and served in a variety of ways on the barbecue.

Lamb's delicate flavor is truly enhanced by slow cooking over ashy coals. In fact, some people like lamb barbecued better than lamb prepared in other cooking methods.

Try it in Tandoori Shis Kebobs, an excellent dish for family or company.

Lamb kebobs

Besides being creative and attractive, lamb kebobs are convenient too, because they can be prepared well ahead of cooking time.

Lamb cubes, cut from a deboned leg, are alternated on a skewer with slices of colourful vegetables, brushed with a special sauce made of pineapple juice, yogurt, curry, salt, ginger and pepper. Besides being creative and attractive, lamb kebobs are convenient too, because they can be prepared well ahead of cooking time.

Barbecued Leg of Lamb is an interesting variation on a traditional favorite. Barbecuing gives the "roast" a tasty character all its own that's perfect for summer dining.

TANDOORI SHISH KEBOBS

- 1 leg of New Zealand Spring Lamb, 5 to 6 pounds, defrosted.
- 1½ cups plain yogurt
- ½ cup pineapple juice
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- ⅛ teaspoon hot pepper
- 1 small eggplant, cut in one-inch cubes
- 1 zucchini, sliced ½-inch thick
- 1 green pepper, seeded, cut in one-inch cubes
- 1 cup cherry tomatoes
- 8 small white onions

Trim "fell" and excess fat from leg of lamb. With thin, sharp knife or boning knife, remove bone from lamb. Cut meat into 1½-inch pieces. In large bowl, combine yogurt, pineapple juice, curry, salt, ginger and pepper sauce; add meat. Cover, refrigerate overnight, turning meat occasionally. Arrange meat and vegetables on skewers. Cook over hot coals about 20 minutes; turn skewers to cook evenly on all sides. Brush often with marinade during cooking.

Yield: 8 servings.

BARBECUED LEG OF LAMB

- 1 leg of New Zealand Spring Lamb, 5 to 6 pounds, defrosted
- 1 clove of garlic, cut in slivers
- 1½ teaspoons dried rosemary, crushed
- ¾ teaspoon dried sage, crushed
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- ¾ cup mint jelly, melted

Using a sharp paring knife, make 10 deep slits in the meat. Insert a sliver of garlic in each slit. In a small bowl mix together rosemary, sage, salt and pepper; rub seasoning over surface of meat. Secure meat on the spit of a rotisserie. Roast meat according to rotisserie directions, allowing about 25 minutes per pound. About 45 minutes before meat is done, brush with melted jelly. Continue to cook, brushing frequently with jelly until meat is done.

Yield: 8 servings.

Menu ideas for hungry campers

First of all, the menu is not left to chance. It is carefully designed to be simple yet satisfying and to require a minimum of cooking utensils and fuel. Obviously, it also should require as few ingredients as possible and result in food to appease ferocious but fussy appetities.

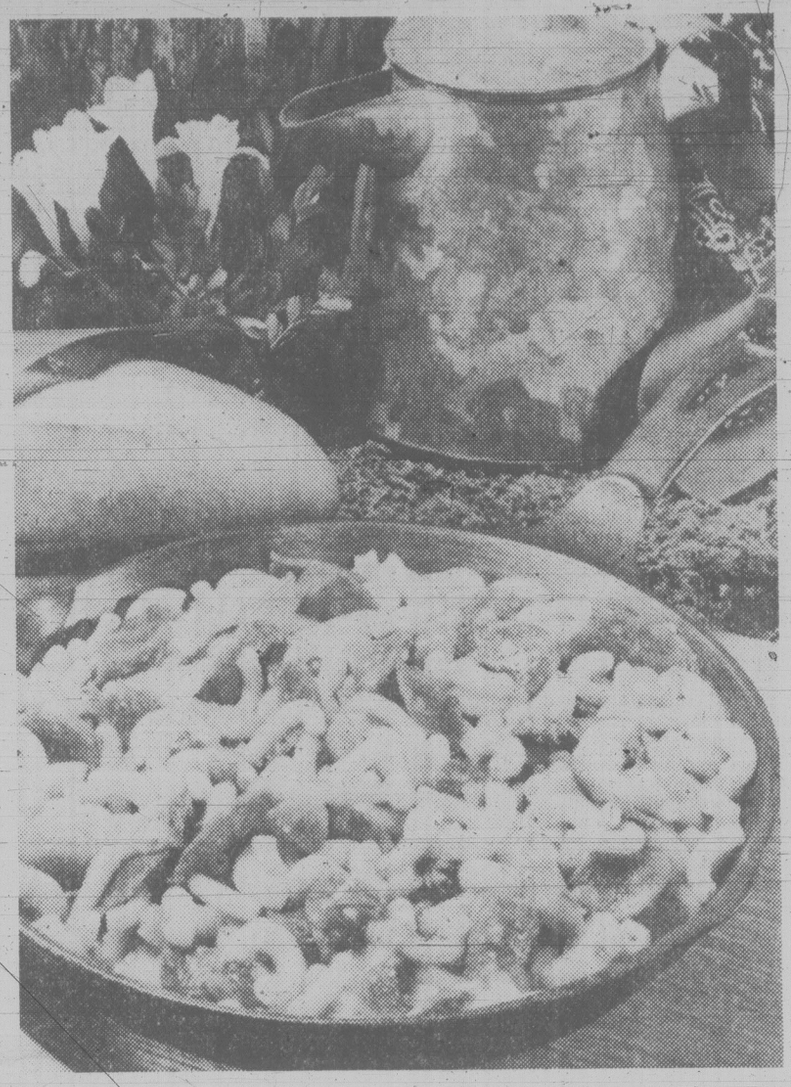

Given those guidelines, campers will want to carry camping knives with can openers and select from recipes such as these two. With an ice chest in the car and a one-burner portable stove, these single — saucepan meals are handily made in less than 20 minutes. The secret is in canned chunky soup which provides advantages such as great flavour and already-prepared vegetables.

Chededar cheese shredded ahead of time and carried in a plastic bag will simplify Sundown Special. The elbow-macaroni also may be cooked in advance, but it doesn't have to be. Cook it as a first step, pour off the water and add the remaining ingredients: chunky old fashioned vegetable beef soup, sliced pepperoni and shredded cheese.

Campers will like the bit of daring which the pepperoni adds and the variety of tastes and textures including macaroni and cheese. Camping or not, this cook-saver dish could easily become an at-home family favourite.

Green pepper, onion and canned luncheon meat are the start of Campfire Jambalaya, a one-kettle meal that's extravagant only in its goodness. The broth and big-bite vegetables come from canned chunky vegetable soup. Basil seasons the main dish soup which simmers for 10 minutes with a cup of quick-cooking rice for extra body. Serve this with crackers and cheese and fresh fruit for a portable feast.

Camping is a time for relaxation and getting better acquainted with companions as well as natural surroundings. Meals should be a pleasurable time for everyone, including the cook. These will add a new chapter to the romance of camping.

SUNDOWN SPECIAL
(Serves 4)

1 can 540 g (19 ounces) chunky old fashioned vegetable beef soup
500 ml (2 cups) cooked elbow macaroni
250 ml (1 cup) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 package 92 g (3½ ounces) sliced pepperoni 250 ml (about 1 cup), cut in half

In saucepan, combine ingredients. Heat; stir occasionally.

CAMPFIRE JAMBALAYA
(Serves 4)

1 can 340 g (12 ounces) luncheon meat, cubed
125 ml (½ cup) chopped onion
75 ml (⅓ cup) diced green pepper
2 ml (½ teaspoon) basil leaves, crushed
30 ml (2 tablespoons) butter or margarine
1 can 540 g (19 ounces) chunky vegetable soup
250 ml (1 cup) quick-cooking rice, uncooked
50 ml (¼ cup) water

In saucepan, brown luncheon meat and cook onion and green pepper with basil in butter until tender. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to boil; reduce heat. Cover; simmer 10 minutes or until done.

Women given lash for swim

TEHRAN (AFP) — Four women were flogged in Now Shahr on the Caspian Sea coast for swimming in one-piece bathing suits on a beach reserved for men.

The newspaper Bambad said the women were arrested for breaking regulations against mixed bathing. They each received 25 lashes.

Roughing it in high style

Cheddar cheese shredded ahead of time and carried in a plastic bag will simplify the tasty Sundown Special.

The elbow macaroni also may be cooked in advance, but it doesn't have to be. Cook it as a first step, pour off the water and add the remaining ingredients: chunky old fashioned vegetable beef soup, sliced pepperoni and shredded cheese.

Campers will like the bit of daring which the pepperoni adds and the variety of tastes and textures including macaroni and cheese.

Then again, maybe it's a ladle of love!

By MIKE McGRADY

It is possible that Thomas Fuller overstated the case for soup when, nearly 400 years ago, he wrote that "Of soup and love, the first is best."

Fuller could not have been thinking of soups that serve as preamble to a meal — those pale consommes and wan bouillons, those see-through soups that are chilled or jellied or garnished with chives. No, what he had in mind was a soup that surrenders itself as readily to fork as spoon, a soup that doesn't come before a meal but is, indeed, a meal.

Love or soup? Fortunately, this is not a choice many of us feel compelled to make. However, in a cold winter night, with snow coming down on the slant and with the wind snapping at the windows, the question might not be decided too easily. Tonight it's soup.

CABBAGE BORSCHT

Ingredients: Beef (boneless chuck, two to three pounds); beef marrow bones (two pounds, cracked); a large turnip; two onions; three carrots; cabbage (one small head); celery; parsley; garlic; canned tomatoes (one large can); sauerkraut (one pound); sour cream; salt; pepper; bay leaf; fresh dill.

Time Required: Four hours.

Preheat oven to 450 degrees F. Peel and dice the onions, carrots and turnip. Slice the celery stalks and leaves. Place all this in a roasting pan with the meat and the bones and put them into the oven for 25 minutes.

Remove pan from oven and scrape contents — including a few tablespoons of the melted fat — into a large soup kettle. Add eight cups of water and bring to a boil over high heat, then lower heat to medium-low. As froth forms on the surface of the soup, remove it with a ladle.

Now add a large can of tomatoes, a small handful of parsley, another of fresh dill. A bay leaf. Two cloves of garlic, minced. Some salt and pepper. Cover pot and cook over a low heat for two hours.

Add the cabbage, shredded. And the sauerkraut. Cook for another hour. The meat should be tender, falling-apart tender. Serve each bowl of soup with a dollop of sour cream and pinch of dill.

CLAM CHOWDER

Ingredients: Bacon (five strips); 50 fresh chowder clams; two onions; one green pepper; celery; potatoes (two pounds); milk; light cream; salt; pepper.

Time Required: An hour and a half.

Scrub and rinse the clams. Place them in a covered pot with six cups of cold water over high heat. When water comes to a boil, reduce heat and simmer until clam shells open.

Cut the bacon into small pieces and cook in a large frying pan over medium heat. Peel and chop two onions and add them to the frying bacon. Chop up a green pepper and a stalk of celery, leaves included, and add this.

When clam shells have all opened, remove the meat from the shells and chop it. Add the clam meat to the frying pan. Before adding the rest of the clam broth, strain the sand away with a piece of cheesecloth.

Peel the potatoes, dice them and add them to the mixture. In 20 minutes or so, when the potatoes are tender, add two cups of milk and one cup of light cream.

SPLIT-PEA SOUP

Ingredients: One ham bone (this is an ideal soup to make the day after you've had baked ham); split peas (two cups, dried); onion; celery; carrot; garlic; bay leaf; thyme; salt; pepper; cayenne pepper; croutons.

Time Required: Three hours.

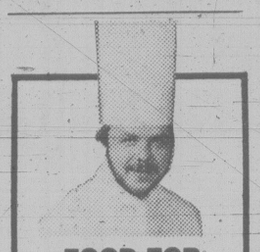

This same basic recipe — starting with a ham bone and as much of the ham as you've been able to salvage — works well with almost any dried bean, especially well with lentils, kidney beans, black beans and white pea beans. Whatever you settle on, rinse them carefully and soak them overnight.

Put the ham bone into a soup kettle with between two and three quarts of water. Add a large onion, peeled and chopped. Three or four stalks of celery, chopped, including some of the leaves. Two carrots, chopped. Two cloves of garlic, minced. A bay leaf. A pinch of thyme and another of cayenne pepper. Salt and pepper.

Bring the water to a boil rapidly and then lower heat. Simmer until the split peas are tender. Some would recommend that you remove the bone and run the rest of the soup through a blender; my feeling is that it should be left as is, served with some of the ham in each bowl and topped with a handful of croutons.

Once you've made the soup of your choice, the rest of the meal is a snap. Garlic bread — just slice a loaf of French or Italian bread down the middle, butter it, dot it with minced garlic and bake for 10 or 15 minutes at 300 degrees F. Then scrape off the garlic bits. The salad will be whatever greens are available, tossed with oil (three parts) and vinegar (one part). Beer and crackers would go very well with the clam chowder; try a hearty red wine with the other soups.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT . . .
By WALTER CHRISTEN

Cherry tomatoes are bright on the plate, and melting in the mouth. Bake them just 10 minutes in a 425° oven, arranged in a well-buttered dish, sprinkled with chives, basil, and salt and pepper.

There's lots of vitamin A in the leafy parts of kale, turnip greens, and collard greens. Removing ribs and stems makes them more tender, loses very little of the vitamins.

A florist in California uses flowers from his shop to flavor and garnish soups and salads. He DOES remove the stems.

Sleek as a leek is the wild ramp!

I have observed over the years that there is more interest in members of the onion family than in any other form of vegetables or herbs. Perhaps it is because onion-related ingredients — garlic, chives, scallions and so on — are so indispensable in a vast majority of North American kitchens.

Magical and medical properties have also been ascribed to various members of the onion family, garlic in particular. One of the most curious interests that has crossed this desk in some time has to do with a wild herb known as a ramp, also called a wild leek.

It is often eaten raw in the U.S. south with barbecue or fried ham. When I mentioned this in a recent column, I added that one authority declared the name derived from ransom, a common name for an unrelated plant, a European bellflower known as Campanula rapunculus.

Now comes a note from Mary Harwood of Washington, Conn., to refute this.

"Ramp," she wrote, "is a wild, northern European leek known in England as 'ramson.'

"It is 'rams' in Danish, Swedish and German, with related names in Gaelic, Lithuanian and Bavarian.

"I have," she added, "ramp transplanted from the Georgia mountains growing in our woodlands here in Connecticut. It is also said to be superb as a substitute for onions in any recipe for French onion soup."

Shortly after the column on ramp, I made another speculation, this time about the word "paquette," which I had seen on a menu denoting a lobster dish with white truffles and called "ragout de paquettes aux dames blanches."

My guess was that the word paquette derived from the French "paquet de mer," meaning a heavy sea.

"Not so," said Ruth Spear, author of Cooking Fish and Shellfish (Doubleday 1980, $16.95).

"Paquette is the French name for a female lobster with fully formed eggs, just prior to depositing them. The feeling is that the creature is at its most succulent then, and, accordingly, is regarded as a premium lobster. How one would know one had a paquette until one split it open I do not know. Presumably at the Palace the 'ordinary' lobsters were relegated to baser uses, but it seems you'd have to open a huge number to obtain enough to make a dish of them, the odds being what they are. One could lessen the odds by choosing only females to begin with — identified by their soft, hairy, crossed last pair of swimmerets and greater width of tail."

An article about souffle crackers as served at the White House was accompanied by a note that no one seems to know their origin. One reader or another asked for the cracker recipe.

Eleanor Friedman of Queens suggested that the crackers might be the ones referred to in a 38-year-old book, Mrs. Appleyard's Kitchen by Louise Kent (Keats, 1942).

In a chapter titled Brides Must Bake, the author speaks of puffed Montpelier crackers, describing them as "larger than an ordinary soda cracker and at once crisper, fluffier and flakier." Then, after a lengthy discussion of the merits of plain, salted Montpelier crackers above ordinary crackers (Vermont water is superior, and so on), she gives the directions for making puffed Montpelier crackers.

"Put ice cubes into a large bowl of cold spring water. When the water is very cold, put in the split halves of crackers. Have ready some clean damask napkins — the kind that are getting a few thin places in them. At the end of three minutes — or sooner, if they seem to be getting too soft — remove the crackers from the ice water. A pancake-turner with holes in it is best for this gesture. If the crackers stay in too long, they will fall to pieces; if not long enough, they will not puff.

"When they have drained for a few minutes — five, perhaps — put them into iron dripping-pans and dot them over quickly with soft butter. Dust them with paprika, if you like it. Have the oven hot (450 to 500 degrees F.) and bake them until they are puffed, crisp and golden brown. They should be done in from 25 to 35 minutes.

It is hard to get on too much butter. Always allow at least an hour for the whole process, as nothing is less attractive than a puffed cracker that has changed its mind and decided to be a wet blotter. It should show no symptoms of ever having been near the water. If you didn't put on enough butter the first time, add some more halfway through the baking."

Pastis makes a bouillabaisse better

the 60-minute gourmet

One of the most curious and interesting flavors that I have used in my kitchen over the years is an anise — or licorice-flavored spirit — known in Marseilles, France, as pastis.

The best known of these in France are Pernod, Ricard and Berger.

Pastis was not originally designed for the kitchen but for the bar. It is normally drunk in a small glass and when water is added, it becomes milky or opalescent.

I first tasted pastis as an ingredient of bouillabaisse when I was an apprentice in my teens. Since then I find it gives a haunting flavor to almost any fish soup.

Similar spirits are to be found in most Mediterranean countries. In Italy there is anisette, in Turkey arrack and in Greece ouzo.

I was fascinated some years ago to dine with Greek friends on a dish called, in Greek, garides me feta or shrimp baked in tomato sauce with feta cheese crumbled on top. At the last minute the cook had added a dash of ouzo and I was immediately reminded of the bouillabaisse of my youth.

Since then I have borrowed the formula for that shrimp dish and adapted it to a platter of red snapper. It is a very simple and delicious dish in which the fish is baked in a tomato sauce flavored with oregano — as characteristic a Greek seasoning as it is Italian — plus a few capers and, my own addition perhaps, a few hot red pepper flakes. There is nothing more Greek, to my mind, than feta cheese which is white, crumbly, salty and made of sheep's milk. It comes in three degrees of saltiness — mild, moderate and sharp. I prefer the moderately salty.

To make the dish, you prepare a quickly cooked tomato sauce, arrange fish fillets on a baking dish and pour the sauce over. The dish is baked for 20 minutes with the feta added for the last five minutes of cooking. To accompany this I like rice cooked with browned broken pasta.

RED SNAPPER A LA GRECQUE
(Baked red snapper with feta cheese)

2 red snapper fillets, about 1¼ pounds each
4 tablespoons olive oil
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 teaspoons finely minced garlic
2 cups canned tomatoes with tomato paste
2 tablespoons drained capers
1 teaspoon dried oregano
¼ teaspoon hot red pepper flakes
¼ cup plus 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ pound crumbled feta cheese
1 tablespoon ouzo (Greek anise liqueur).

1. Preheat the oven to 425 degrees.

2. Wipe the fish fillets with a damp cloth.

3. Heat two tablespoons of the oil in a saucepan and add the onion and garlic. Cook, stirring, until onion is wilted.

4. Add the tomatoes with tomato paste, capers, oregano, pepper flakes, one-quarter cup chopped parsley, salt and pepper to taste. Cook 10 minutes.

5. Put the remaining two tablespoons of oil in a baking dish, preferably oval, large enough to hold the fish in one layer. Arrange the fish, skin side up, in the dish. Pour the tomato sauce over all.

6. Place the dish on top of the stove and bring the sauce to the boil. Put the dish in the oven and bake 15 minutes. Sprinkle with feta cheese and bake five minutes longer.

7. Sprinkle with ouzo and remaining two tablespoons chopped parsley. Serve piping hot.

RIZ AU NOUILLES
(Rice with browned noodles)

3 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
¾ cup broken capellini or thin spaghetti
1¼ cups cold water
Salt to taste.

1. Heat the oil in a saucepan and add the broken capellini. Cook, stirring briefly, until strands are golden brown. Do not burn.

2. Add the rice and stir. Add the water and salt and bring to the boil. Cover and simmer 17 minutes.

Yield: 4 servings.

questions & answers

Q. I have a passion for frankfurters. A friend of mine says that they are made from the cheapest cuts of pork. Is that true?

A. I can assure you that the ingredients for frankfurters vary greatly from one manufacturer to another.

One recipe source states that the meats used in preparing frankfurters range from lean bull or cow trimmings to regular pork trimmings, beef cheeks, skinned pork jowls, trimmed pork cheeks, fat pork trimmings, fat beef trimmings and pork fat.

The best hot dogs are made from first-quality meat, whether that includes trimmings or not. The wieners of lowest quality are made from less desirable trimmings.

Q. An old French cookbook that I owned, a manual written for professional chefs, states that some dishes should be browned under a fer a glacer. Are you familiar with this?

A. A fer a glacer, or glazing iron, is the same as a salamander, with which most professional ranges are equipped. The salamander (or fer a glacer) is usually situated over the range or to one side of the range.

Although many people mistakenly believe that a salamander is to be used for broiling meats, its express purpose is for browning various preparations, such as au gratin dishes.

I have a range outfitted with a salamander and would never use it for broiling a steak. In the first place, the fat would splatter and perhaps catch fire. Also, if the salamander is used as a broiler for meats, it is tedious to clean after each use.

Begin off job at least month

JERUSALEM (AP) — The mild heart attack Prime Minister Menachem Begin suffered two days ago is expected to keep him off the job for a month or more, but will have little effect on Israeli policy or the running of the government.

The 66-year-old Begin, confined to a bed at Hadassah Hospital, turned over his responsibilities Tuesday to Deputy Prime Minister Yigael Yadin, but he also had a special telephone installed at his bedside and called in Yadin and others for talks.

Yadin, who heads the most moderate faction in Begin's coalition government, said Begin "seemed all right" and was able to grasp the issues discussed.

Observers believe Yadin, the soldier-archeologist turned politician, may delay cabinet actions Begin might have pushed through, but will take no independent action and will have little influence over policy.

Ulster home rule proposed

Times News Services

LONDON — Britain's Conservative government today unveiled its long-awaited blueprint to restore home rule in Northern Ireland and guarantee a share of responsibility to the province's Roman Catholic minority. The government white paper proposes a new single chamber assembly of about 80 members replacing the former Northern Ireland local parliament in which the Protestants enjoyed a built-in majority for nearly 50 years.

The Assembly would be elected by province-wide proportional representation, it said.

The white paper also proposes an executive to run the province's internal affairs with guaranteed seats for the Roman Catholic minority and a council made up of Assembly members to advise Britain's Northern Ireland secretary of state, who in effect is the province's governor.

The white paper said the government hopes the new blueprint will achieve "a system of government which the people of Northern Ireland will support."

The initiative comes after 11 years of sectarian violence during which 2,040 people, both Catholic and Protestant have been killed. The figure includes 434 British soldiers.

Northern Ireland's 1.5 million population is two-thirds Protestant and one-third Roman Catholic.

The last experiment in Protestant-Catholic power sharing collapsed in 1974 after a general strike by militant Protestant workers and since then Ulster has been ruled directly from London.

Under the new plan, Northern Ireland would remain part of the United Kingdom, but existing ties and common interests with the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish Republic would be developed and encouraged.

Britain's Northern Ireland secretary would remain responsible for law and order, defence and public expenditure.

But the assembly and executive would run agriculture, commerce, education, employment, environment, housing, health and social services.

The white paper called on the Protestant majority to "set aside its misgivings, however understandable these are," and to accept a proportionately constituted executive.

"The prize to be gained in terms of the cohesion of Northern Ireland and the prospects for reconciliation and reconstruction could be a rich one," it said.

Meanwhile, Brian Keenan, identified by British intelligence sources as one of the Irish Republican Army's top strategists, has been sentenced in London to 18 years in prison for masterminding a terrorist bombing campaign in England five years ago.

The sources said Keenan, 39, is a member of the policy-making inner council of the guerrilla movement's Provisional wing and one of the top five IRA commanders.

British police rounded up most of his fellow terrorists in 1977. Keenan escaped back to Ireland, but Scotland Yard agents tracked him down.

Radio signals solar-flared?

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Scientists with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) say a major flare on the southern hemisphere of the sun could disturb radio communications on earth later this week.

The flare was spotted by scientists at noon Tuesday and NOAA officals warned its impact, although expected to be slight, could be felt within 48 hours.

Officials said the active sunspot region that produced the flare will face the earth for another three days before the sun's rotation carries it out of sight.

Farewell to sixpence

LONDON (AP) — Britons said goodbye today to the 429-year-old sixpence, the last survivor of their quirky pre-decimal coinage and subject of a host of rhymes and folk traditions.

The estimated 150 million sixpence in circulation ceased to be legal tender at midnight Monday night, although banks will pay face value for those collected from the public until the end of September.

The BBC featured the passing of the popular silver-colored coin in news bulletins, and newspapers published obituaries.

Nicknamed the tanner — nobody knows why; the Oxford English Dictionary says "origin uncertain" — the sixpence started life in 1551 as a "debased" version of the solid silver shilling and bore a portrait of baby King Edward VI.

Twenty-one British monarchs later, the sixpence today is worth 2½ pence in Britain's decimalized 100-pennies-to-the-pound currency. Decimalization replaced the colorful old 240-pennies-to-the-pound system in 1971.

One reason the sixpence was deleted is that it was practically worthless with Britain's current annual inflation rate of 21.9 per cent.

Sixty years ago, it bought a pint of beer or 20 cigarettes with change to spare. Today, it's not enough for a box of matches.

The pound, nicknamed the quid, continues as Britain's basic decimalization unit.

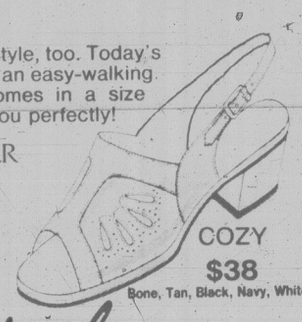

The shilling, which before 1971 consisted of 12 pre-decimalization pennies and was called the bob, lives on as the five-pence piece. Now it's referred to as "five p" but there are still 20 to a pound.

But the government decided the tanner must follow into oblivion or the collectors' cabinets the farthing; the three-penny bit; the florin or two-bob bit, worth two shillings; the half-crown, worth two shillings and sixpence, and the 10-bob note, a paper bill replaced by the 50p coin.

Yes, comfort does come in your size!

Church sexist nun charges

EDMONTON (CP) — The institutional Catholic church is sexist and oppressive to women, Sister Marjorie Tuite, co-director of the Jesuit School of Theology in Chicago, said Monday.

She told 200 Catholic men and women attending a social justice session at Newman Theological College that words in Catholic liturgy such as "men" and "God the Father" are sexist.

"How can we work against oppression in society, then step into the church and ignore the oppression there?" said Sister Marjorie.

The oppressive structure in the Catholic church denies women access into the priesthhod where they could truly experience the beauty of the faith, she said.

Pilots named to Hall of Fame

EDMONTON (CP) — Three pilots who logged more than 30,000 hours of air time were inducted into Canada's Aviation Hall of Fame in Edmonton this week.

Air Vice Marshall Thomas Albert Lawrence, 84, was recognized for his work as a pioneer in Arctic flying and a commander of RCAF missions out of Edmonton during the Second World War.

Robert Fowler, 58, an officer of the Order of Canada, was recognized for his achievements as a Second World War pilot and chief test pilot for de Havilland aircraft. He flew 48 wartime missions before taking up a career as a civilian test pilot.

James Henry Foy, who died in 1974 at the age of 52, was elected posthumously for his war flying record, service as pilot to the Queen and contributions to Canadian and international pilots' associations.

Foy received the Distinguished Flying Cross after being shot down over France in 1943 and working with the French underground in smuggling other downed pilots out of enemy territory.

Rustler jailed

CALGARY (CP) — A man who stole cattle last year to save his farm was sentenced to prison Wednesday by a judge who informed him Westerners don't take kindly to cattle rustling.

Paul Michael Ruby, 23, of Three Hills, Alta., was sentenced to two years and three months in prison and ordered to pay $5,089 in restitution to three livestock auction firms after pleading guilty to three charges of stealing 18 calves.

Herd zapped

SINCLAIR, Man. (CP) — A local family lost 23 purebred cattle in a single bolt of lightening, RCMP say.

Police said Tim Skelton discovered the deaths when he went to feed his stock of 49 on a farm four kilometres north of Sinclair. The incident occured the previous evening.

Sinclair is about 90 kilometres east of Brandon.

Graves stacked

CALGARY (CP) — People receiving free cemetery plots from the city of Calgary may have to double up for eternity.

The parks department, responsible for 75 welfare burials last year, is recommending that double-decker graves become a standard policy for those unable to pay their way into the hereafter.

In a report to the parks and recreation board, the department urges stacking two coffins in one welfare grave, with the top plot reserved for a relative.

HARD TIMES have hit many Prairie farmers this summer as drought drains pocketbooks as well as land. As a result, farm equipment and houshold items are going cheap at rural auctions like this one in Angusville, Man.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
3 NT!	Dble	Pass	Pass
6 NT!	Dble	Pass	Pass
7 ♣	Dble

Opening lead — king of hearts.

This deal is said to have been played in a high-stake game in Hollywood many years ago. I don't know whether the participants were producers, script writers, actors, directors or janitors, but the scenario was certainly first-rate, whether you believe the story or not.

Judging from his opening bid of three notrump, South was a highly imaginative member of the movie colony. Moreover, he displayed a fine sense of humor when, having been doubled at three notrump, he rescued himself by leaping to six notrump! This also got doubled — to no one's surprise — and South now emerged from his shell long enough to bid seven clubs, which was likewise doubled.

South had no idea how badly he'd fare — he was out to have a good time and he was having it — but when dummy came down he was obviously very pleased. So much so, that he reeled off 13 tricks quicker than you could say Sam Goldwyn.

He ruffed the heart lead and crossruffed the next eight tricks, trumping four diamonds in dummy and three hearts and a spade in his hand. Then, after drawing East's one and only trump he claimed the balance, since his fifth diamond was now an established trick.

Of course, the hand created a big stir. South had scored a tour de force as well as a grand slam, and North congratulated him heartily for his excellent bidding.

East-West were less enthused by the outcome. South had made a grand slam with only 10 high-card points! Moreover, to add to their discomfiture, East-West realized they could have bid and made seven hearts for a score of 2,410 points!

Somewhere in this story there must be a moral, but I will have to leave it to my readers to find it. I'm out of space!

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J.A.H. HUNTER

We have 5788 for the game today: two 8's, one 7 and one 5. Using all four each time, but no other digits at all, you form expressions for the consecutive numbers from one up.

Any arithmetical signs may be used, but no summation or factorial symbols, and no words. Don't forget decimals, regular and repeater, also roots and powers. For example; 85 — 8 + 7 is a solution for 84.

Columbia buys right to Carson

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Johnny Carson has signed an agreement with Columbia Pictures Industries Inc. that will include distribution of film and television shows from the Tonight Show host's own Carson Productions Inc.

"Columbia looks forward to the establishment of a longterm relationship with Mr. Carson and his production company," Francis Vincent, Columbia Pictures Industries president and chief executive officer, said Monday. "Johnny Carson is a dynamic force in the entertainment medium and we at Columbia are most excited about the positive prospects which this venture generates."

Columbia will have exclusive rights to distribute all Carson-produced television programs "for a significant period of time," including any NBC-TV shows that result from Carson's new contract with the network, the announcement said.

In that deal, industry sources say, NBC has made an estimated $50-million commitment for a minimum of three series over a three-year period, as well as an unspecified number of TV movies.

Carson Productions also has the rights to Tonight Show programs for sale outside the United States, but it is not known if Columbia's television distribution wing will distribute.

WIN A summerfunthing
Play it daily and be eligible to win weekly prizes. It's easy and it's fun — just follow the instructions below . . .
THIS WEEK'S PRIZES

1st

SOUND MOVIE CAMERA

2nd

A CHILD'S GYM SET

3rd
"PUMP POT"

(5 to be won)
Pressured-powered Hot 'N' Cold Liquid Dispenser

HOW TO PLAY
Locked inside the "SUMMERFUNTHING" safe are many valuable prizes! Some of those prizes could be yours if you find the correct PASSWORD that opens the combination lock. It's an exciting game that's fun and easy to enter. The instructions on the dial give you the position of the letters in the "SUMMERFUNTHING" PASSWORD. All you have to do is find the first letter to start. For instance, suppose you started at the letter E and the instructions read 2nd LETTER-FOUR COUNTER CLOCKWISE. Count four spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter E and you arrive at the letter A. The next instruction reads 3rd LETTER-EIGHT COUNTER CLOCKWISE, so count off eight spaces in a counter-clockwise direction from the letter A and you arrive at the letter S. Finally the 4th letter, SIX CLOCKWISE means you count in a clockwise direction from the letter S and you arrive at the letter Y. In this example the PASSWORD is the word E-A-S-Y. To give you another clue and to add to the interest, each day's password is scrambled and you will find it at the bottom of the illustration.

GAME RULES
1. Winners will be chosen by random drawing from all valid entries. All winners must answer a skill testing question.
2. Winners from the previous week will be published in the Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist.
3. It is not necessary for contestants to buy the Colonist or Times to enter the SUMMERFUNTHING contest. An exact drawing of the entry form printed in the Colonist or Times may be made on a plain piece of paper. Note: copies produced by any other process will not be accepted.
4. The SUMMERFUNTHING judges will have the final decision on any interpretation of Game rules.
5. As a condition of receiving prizes, recipients agree to allow publication of their names and pictures in the Colonist or Times for no additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all rules. No prize substitutions.
6. The contest is open to all readers of the Daily Colonist and Victoria Times on Vancouver Island and the Gulf Islands. Employees of Victoria Press and their immediate families are not eligible to enter.
7. In fairness to all, the Colonist or Times cannot answer questions or respond to phone calls or letters regarding THE SUMMERFUNTHING CONTEST.
8. All winners will be determined by a random draw from all valid entries.

HOW TO ENTER
Complete the puzzle and fill in the "PASSWORD" on the entry form. Clip out the entry form and send it to us in an envelope with the puzzle number printed in the top left-hand corner of the envelope. (As illustrated.)
Be sure to include your name, address and phone number on the entry form.
Enter as many times as you wish but make sure each entry is in a separate envelope.
Mail your entries to: "Summerfunthing" Post Office Box 1390 Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4 or drop your entries off at Victoria Press 2621 Douglas St. Monday through Friday 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.
A new puzzle will appear each day, but the weekly winners will be selected from all entries submitted for the previous week's puzzles.
To be eligible, your entry must be received by 5:30 p.m. on the Thursday following the week the puzzle was published.
Enter daily, or as often as you wish, but be sure each entry is submitted in a separate envelope.

SEAFRONT COTTAGE
Emerald green and birds are singing on Piers Island come rain or shine. A snug haven for summer or retirement. Panelled living room, with a brick heatilator fireplace, cosy when reading on cooler evenings. When it's warm relax on the patio just a few steps above the 85' choice sand, rock and pebble beach enjoying superb seascape with gulf island and US Stewart Island in the background. Meanwhile lazy sail boats noiselessly glide pass with fast cruisers and frequent ferries shuttling back and forth vying for your attention. Of course if you are energetic fish, scuba dive, beachcomb, gather bark for your fireplace, water ski, stroll or jog 2 miles of road or observe deer and birds on the nature trails of adjacent 150 acre parkland and wildlife sanctuary. Put yourself in the picture in this different world on the doorstep of the Saanich Peninsula-10 minutes from Swartz Bay. All this for $58,800. To see this new listing this weekend call Fraser Biscoe F.R.I., R.I. (BC) Seafront Specialist 417 - 645 Fort Street, Victoria 383-9413. (Answering service)

Insanity plea

Lawyers for a Duncan businessman accused of murdering his wife in Hawaii last April have entered a defence motion of insanity.

The motion, filed June 19, asks the judge to acquit Robert Large on the grounds of mental disease, disorder or defect, which excluded him from responsibility for his actions.

Large's wife, Claudette, 41, died April 26 of asphyxiation and other injuries in Lahaina, Maui.

A charge of murder was laid against Large on May 23.

Prosecutor Boyd Mossman said Judge George Fukuoka will rule on the defence motion July 22.

Large, one of the founders of the K and R food store chain and a director of Datatech Services Ltd. of Victoria, has been released on $50,000 bail and is under psychiatric treatment at a Maui hospital.

garden notes
by helen chesnut

Depending on how one goes about this very basic gardening function, watering can be a tedious chore or an opportunity for enjoyable relaxation. On Vancouver Island, Mother Nature often does the job for us but when she slips up, it's time for us to step in and make up for the deficit in our soil's moisture bank account.

We once had a dear neighbor, a grand gardener she was, who spent each evening in her vegetable patch hand-watering her garden. I remember thinking how boring it must be, with nothing to do but stand there holding a nozzle and slapping at the occasional mosquito, but in retrospect I imagine it was her time to think, to wind down from her busy day.

At the same time, that method of watering simply isn't for me because I know I'd tire of hanging on to that hose long before the plants received a sufficient drink. And this, of course, would violate the most sacred rule of garden watering — water thoroughly when you water and do not water again until you are certain the garden needs it.

Contemplate what happens to water as it drops upon the soil or the lawn surface. Naturally it moves downward and if just a little water is applied, then only a little soil becomes dampened. If the equivalent of 2½ cm. (one inch) of rain is applied, that amount will penetrate beneath the soil surface from 13 to 28 cm. (five to 11 inches), depending on the heaviness of the soil. Anyone with sandy soil will attest to the speed with which water penetrates that sort of ground. A lawn built on sandy, gravelly soil is perpetually thirsty.

Now consider the results for plant roots if you water too sparsely. If you water only the top centimeter of soil, where will the plant roots have to go for their moisture? Close to the top of the soil and this will produce shallow-rooted, weak plants.

And if only the top 30 cm. (foot) of soil is kept, moist, roots must develop in that depth of soil. Now even grass roots can penetrate to a depth of 60 cm (two feet). In fact, they should be encouraged, by deep but infrequent watering, to root deeply. Deeply rooted plants will not only be strongly anchored, with a wider feeding range, but will be less susceptible to damage in times of drought or while you're away on vacation.

The only accurate way to determine whether you need to water a patch of ground is to test the soil and if the top 15 cm. (six inches) are dry, then you know you need to water.

There's no problem determining how long you must leave a sprinkler on to apply 2½ cm. (one inch) of water to the soil. Place several straight-edged containers in various parts of the sprinkler's range and check when most have the desired amount of water in them. In sandy soil, this 2½ cm. (an inch) of water will have penetrated 30 cm. (a foot) below the surface. The amount of water you apply to any given area depends on the root depth of the plantings in that area.

And trees can be given an extra boost by regular watering with a root irrigator — a rod that is attached to the hose and plunged into the soil in the root area of trees. The water is emitted through holes at the end after the implement is inserted at least a foot beneath the soil surface. Some of these handy gizmoes come with attachments for administering fertilizer at the same time.

There's a veritable boom going on in new types of equipment to make the watering job easier. For the gardener who hates heaving hoses about the yard, there are underground sprinkler kits available from roughly $85 to $110 or more depending on the size of the area you need to cover.

Mothballs to big time for float?

A city of Victoria parade float mothballed by budget cuts after only a few local appearances may hit the big time in Vancouver and Seattle if council can find enough money.

The Chinese-theme float earned prizes in parades in Oak Bay, Victoria, Esquimalt and Colwood but now is gathering dust in the city's Garbally works yard, a victim of austerity measures.

Ald. Robin Blencoe, chairman of council's public works committee, hopes $2,000 or $3,000 can be reinstated to send the float over to the big parades for Seattle's Seafair and the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver later this summer.

Blencoe, who said Mayor Bill Tindall is sympathetic, plans to raise the matter at a committee meeting next week.

Signs warn drivers about pole

The Victoria traffic department keeps an eye on all potential accident-causing situations — including a much-attacked utility pole in the 1700-block Rockland — but can't keep drivers from ignoring posted warnings.

A spokesman for the department was replying to complaints by Peter Saras of 1731 Rockland, after another car wrapped itself around the pole in front of his house on Saturday night — the ninth in recent months, he believes.

The pole is only inches from the curb on a sharp curve at Oak Shade Lane. Saras doesn't want it moved, as it keeps cars from piling into his fence, but asks that a sign and warning reflector be added as precautions.

San Diego sloop leading Maui race

Triumph, a 61-foot sloop from the Scottsdale yacht club in San Diego was leading the fleet Tuesday night in the 2,308-nautical-mile Victoria-Maui yacht race, logging 180 miles for the day.

Twenty miles behind was the Tacoma boat Chiron, which had the best day's distance, logging 260 miles.

Thirty miles behind Chiron were third-place Race Passage of Bremerton, closely followed by Wink Vogel's Vancouver yacht Dream Machine and John Long's Vancouver boat Indomitable.

The Canadian naval training ship HMCS Oriole, a 90-footer from Esquimalt, was in 10th place.

The spread between the front and rear of the fleet Tuesday was 190 miles. Ten boats had posted 200 miles or more for the previous 24 hours and the minimum day's run was 150 miles.

At last report, all the boats were taking the southern route to Maui.

The lead group was 400 miles off the California coast near San Francisco and was about 1,700 miles from the finish line in Hawaii. The 35 yachts formed the shape of a banana.

Hallmark open house

The Hallmark Society is holding an open house Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Jackson house, an 80-year-old James Bay home rescued by the heritage organization and the provincial government.

Threatened by demolition because of an extended care hospital project, the house at 522 Simcoe was bought by the heritage conservation branch in March for $60,000 and moved to a nearby vacant lot owned by the province at 429 Parry, near Menzies and Michigan.

It will be restored to its "late Victorian picturesque" turn-of-the-century condition as a headquarters for the Hallmark Society, which will purchase the house after it has raised enough funds.

So far, $6,000 has been found but the society needs another $54,000 to complete the job. Donations at the door on Sunday are welcome or they can be mailed to the Heritage Building Foundation, P.O. Box 1204, Victoria.

Before the judge

A 30-year-old Saanich man was jailed 28 days and fined $700 after he pleaded guilty in provincial court Monday to four charges in connection with two accidents June 18.

Phillip Paulson, 3228 Wicklow, struck a parked auto in front of an Esquimalt Road convenience store and told the occupant he would meet her later at the police station.

Later he was in collision with another vehicle in the 800-block Esquimalt. He told the other driver he would pull over, but instead sped off.

He was later arrested behind an Esquimalt Road pub. He told police his driver's licence was under indefinite suspension.

Paulson's breath analysis test readings were .22 and .23.

Judge Harold Alder fined Paulson $200 and $500 on the two leaving-the-scene charges and sentenced him to 14 days each on the over .08 and driving while suspended charge.

Also fined on drinking-driving charges were Howard Widdifield, 62, of 296 Eltham, $400; Bert Hansen, 27, of Campbell River, $400; Carey Bondy, 24, of St. Clair Beach, Ont., $400; Walter Jorgenson, 60, 4244 Metchosin, $400; Alexander Baduik, 37, 340 Jasmine, $400; Michael Sallis, 21, 107-755 Market, $100; Kathryn Warren, 18, 350 Wilson, $400.

The charges against Terrance Penny included a 1978 Lumby fraud charge and a 1976 fraud charge from Moose Jaw. Both involved worthless cheques.

The third charge was for failing to appear in relation to the Lumby charge.

Court was told Penny had rehabilitated himself considerably since the time of the offences which occurred when he was in an emotionally-trying period following the breakup of his marriage.

He was fined a total of $450 and ordered to make $40 restitution to a Lumby hotel and $70 to a Moose Jaw camera shop.

Mel Smith transferred

Mel Smith, deputy minister in charge of constitutional affairs attached to Premier Bennett's office, is being transferred to the ministry of intergovernmental relations.

"Mr. Smith's transfer to full-time work on constitutional affairs and federal-provincial aspects underlines the importance of this field to the government of B.C.," said Minister of Intergovernmental Relations Garde Gardom.

He is recognized as one of the most experienced provincial officials in constitutional law and intergovernmental matters throughout Canada, said Gardom.

He's been involved in matters of constitutional law and federal-provincial relations since 1967 and is secretary to the cabinet committee on confederation.

A perfect day of fun at Sidney

Two year-old Terese Windsor, left, enjoys the company of Rangi, owned by the Cienciala's of 1310 Clayton, as she watches the parade under sunny skies.

The day started with a pancake breakfast at the Sanscha fairgrounds and continued with the big parade at 11 a.m.

Rides, food and novelty booths and softball games gave everybody plenty to do.

FOLKFEST MEANT FUN for estimated 82,000 people who visited ethnic celebration in Victoria's Centennial Square. Multicultural gourmets were in heaven, feeding on Hungarian langos, Indian samosas, Ukrainian perogies and other delicious fare. Canada Day windup to the nine-day festival saw a two-by-three foot birthday cake handed out to the crowds and a flypast by nine Canadian Forces aircraft from Comox. Square was jammed by moms, dads and small fry drssed for the searing sun. Wet weather last week put a damper on things, but the last few days were fantastic, said one organizers. For news of July 1 activities nationally, see page 19. Sidney Days pictures are on page 56 and pictures of Armed Forces Day events are on page 17.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, saying he was acting to "maintain peace," issued an order today requiring 4 million young American men to sign up for draft registration between July 21 and Aug. 2 at their local post offices.

Carter said the order is designed "not to threaten war, but to preserve peace."

"I am not in favor of a peacetime draft," Carter said. "We will continue to rely on voluntary enlistment by the military forces to defend our country."

Under Carter's order, men born in 1960 must register during the first week of the sign-up period and those born in 1961 during the week starting July 28.

Thus, all the nation's 19 and 20-year-old men are required to fill out forms at the nation's 34,000 post offices during the two-week period. Even those who are 18 now but will turn 19 before year's end must register.

Then, beginning next January, men born in 1962 will register. After that, each man will sign up when he turns 18.

All that is required on the registration form is name, address, phone number, date of birth and Social Security number. Men who fail to register could face a maximum five years in prison and a $10,000 fine if the government chooses to prosecute them.

Surrounded by congressional and other supporters of draft registration — all of them well beyond the age of those affected by the proclamation — Carter emphasized that "this is not a draft."

"I am not in favor of a peacetime draft," he said, adding that the United States will continue to rely on voluntary enlistment to meet its military manpower needs.

The order implements a bill Carter signed Friday providing more than $13 million to pay for the costs. An actual draft would require a military emergency and congressional approval.

Several groups have organized to combat registration and the American Civil Liberties Union has filed suit to stop the process, contending the process discriminates against men since women are not included.

To counter these groups, an organization called College Democrats of America — working through the Democratic National Committee — issued a statement supporting the president.

MG rescue bid fails

LONDON (UPI) — It's goodbye to the MG sports car and this time it's final.

A British consortium formed to rescue the famous MG name from extinction admitted Tuesday it had failed to raise the necessary cash.

So British Leyland, the car manufacturer that loses $2,000 on every MG it sells in North America, said it will close the production plant at Abingdon and fire its 820 workers.

For 55 years the MG has been the romantic epitome of the British sports car. But now only 30,000 a year are produced.

Beer by half dozen takes a price jump

Beer by the half dozen costs 15 cents more today in a price adjustment announced by the Liquor Distribution Branch.

The new price is $3.10 for six bottles of standard domestic brands.

At the same time the price of Schlitz beer from the U.S. rose $1.25 for a six pack, bringing the price to $5.10, the equivalent of $10.20 a dozen.

Meanwhile, Olympia, the other U.S. brand stocked in LDB stores, is a comparative bargain at $6 a dozen.

Domestic beer is $5.90 a dozen, including the deposit. A dozen beer costs $4.75 in neighboring Alberta.

The price per dozen had been increased in April when federal excise taxes were increased.

The 15-cent increase in the half-dozen size includes a penny added to the sales tax. The net 14-cent increase is split between the breweries and the LDB.

The new pricing structure for a half-dozen domestic beer is $2.62 plus 18 cents in sales tax plus 30 cents for the bottles.

For a dozen it remains at $4.95 plus 35 cents sales tax plus 60 cents for the bottles.

LDB information officer Joyce Courtney said it is usual for the half-dozen size to be comparatively more expensive than buying by the dozen, just as two mickeys will cost more than one bottle of rye.

She said the $1.25 increase in Schlitz was at the request of the brewery and was not related to any possible influx of American beer if there is a brewery strike here.

Labor negotiations are continuing at the breweries.

The LDB does not have facilities to do any stockpiling because beer moves directly to the LDB stores.

"The stores buy beer by the day and they don't have much storage space either. They must reserve space for the stacks of empties. Some hotels have been stockpiling beer, I understand."

Anti-trust bubble in the cards

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal judge has popped the bubble in the baseball-card business by ruling that the Topps Chewing Gum Co. and the Major Leagues Baseball Players Association violated U.S. anti-trust laws.

U.S. District Judge Clarence Newcomer ruled Tuesday that "Topps and the players association have unlawfully restrained and monopolized trade in pocket-size pictures of active major league baseball players."

The suit was brought by a former competitor in the baseball trading card market, Fleer Corp. of Philadelphia. But while Fleer, which claims to have invented bubble gum, had asked for $16 million in damages in the suit that was filed five years ago, Newcomer awarded it $3.

Based in Brooklyn, N.Y., and regarded as the world's largest bubble gum manufacturer, Topps has dominated the market for almost a quarter of a century.

In his ruling, Newcomer said: "Together, Topps and the players association have all of the market power there is in the baseball card market; and they have unlawfully exercised that power in a way which has left the Topps product alone in the market."

Fishy way to prepare for a quake!

Times News Services

Japanese rushed to stores to stock up on emergency supplies Tuesday after experts warned that a major earthquake could follow hundreds of tremors that shook central Japan over the weekend.

Officials and store keepers reported a run on non-perishable foods and other survival items at stores throughout Tokyo.

There was also a run on live catfish. Shops that sold them quickly ran out.

The catfish were bought by both the superstitious and the scientific-minded, who put them in their toilet bowls to give warning of an impending quake.

According to myth, Japan rests on the back of a giant sleeping catfish and everytime it stirs, an earthquake occurs.

But authorities also say there is some truth to the myth. They said experiments conducted recently by Japanese researchers showed that catfish react abnormally before a quake strikes.

Authorities said the "worst case" possibility would be a "great quake" registering eight or more on the Richter scale — one which, if it struck Tokyo, could kill as many as 3.5 million people.

News reports to that effect set off a spree of panic buying.

Sunday's 6.3 quake was the most powerful to hit Japan in two years.

Experts warned they expect a major earthquake to hit Shizuoka province on Izu peninsula and predicted it could be comparable to the 1923 great Kanto earthquake that left about 143,000 people dead in and around Tokyo.

Meanwhile in North America, a series of small earthquakes rattled Mount St. Helens before ending as abruptly as it began.

Gold jumps

London's five bullion traders fixed the morning price of gold at $672 U.S. an ounce, up from Tuesday's close of $660, and the highest London price for the metal since it closed at $695.50 on Feb. 13. However, the afternoon fix was dropped to $661.50.

Heatwave toll rises

Times News Services

In the sun-baked southwest U.S. — where almost 100 deaths have been linked to intense heat — rising crime, fears about water shortages and exploding highways are adding to the misery.

Of 96 deaths, authorities in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri reported 51 were directly attributable to the heat and 45 that were said to be heat-related.

Records were set for the ninth straight day Tuesday in the Dallas-Fort Worth area with a high of 43 degrees. Wichita Falls, Texas, had 45 degrees at midday and Wichita, Kan., recorded a high of 43.

A spokesman for the Dallas Police Department said crime had risen markedly because of the heat.

Princess overbooks — again!

Seattle radio station KMPS says it was attacked by an angry mob last year because the B.C. Steamship Co. overbooked on the Victoria-Seattle ferry run.

Now the station claims that the crown corporation has done it again.

And that's got KMPS management mad.

In a letter to the minister, station program director Ron Norwood says he is protesting "the serious problem of overbooking and lack of either competence or communications on the part of the B.C. Steamship Co. personnel."

He asks Jordan to look into the matter and prevent it from happening again.

The minister's office said today Norwood's letter hasn't arrived yet.

KMPS' first run-in with the ferry service occurred Sept. 29, 1979, the day of the station's fourth annual trip aboard the Princess Marguerite to Victoria.

The station sold 750 tickets to listeners for the round trip and, Norwood says, kept in contact with the ferry office in Seattle as to the ticket count.

"To add to our problems, some members of the Seattle staff told the people left behind that KMPS had oversold the ship, and as a result of this, over 100 angry persons stormed and vandalized the radio station threatening bodily harm to station personnel."

KMPS representatives met B.C. Steamship officials after the trip and were told it wouldn't happen again.

But it did.

This year's trip was set for June 22 on the Victoria Princess, which replaced the Marguerite on the run.

Arrangements were made with David Price, the steamship company's general manager, to have the vessel reserved entirely for the station on that day.

However, Norwood says the station was told on the morning of June 22 that another 60 tickets had been sold to a charter company.

"As a result, approximately 30 persons were left on the dock in Seattle," he says.

"To add insult to injury, the Seattle staff once again told people that we oversold the ship."

Another 30 people were left in Victoria on the return trip as a result of more tickets being sold at this end.

Norwood says when he got back to Seattle he went to talk to Jack McDonald, the steamship company's terminal manager.

He was met by McDonald's assistant Paul Bubnick who, Norwood says, claimed to have no knowledge of the station's problems and "became extremely rude and sarcastic."

"After the events of the day, and being told by one more person that they didn't know anything, I also became rude.

"As a result Mr. Bubnick called a Pinkerton guard to have me escorted from the terminal.

—If the B.C. Steamship Co. knew about the 60 extra chartered persons, why didn't they tell KMPS?

—Why wasn't the Victoria terminal manager informed of the fact that KMPS had already sold 800 tickets for the Victoria Princess on June 22?
